ROSENNIAL 1972
WALTER P. CHRYSLER HIGH SCHOOL
NEW CASTLE, INDIANA
VOLUME 55

Merging with nature, Jan Crider reflects on the past before stepping into the future.

..... Call it FUSION

Pre-game huddles provide the Trojans a last chance to review plays.

Drastic change made its way into Chrysler High School during the late 1960's. The traditional period system was converted to modern flexible scheduling. Students and faculty occasionally confronted one another, often times displaying ignorance and closed-mindedness. Today, debates and discussions replace walkouts; topics of conversation in the classroom extend beyond the pages of a textbook; individual tastes and opinions run second to a new system that boasts unity. Call it bridging gaps or blending contrasts. Call it communication. Call it... FUSION.

Group discussions offer students the opportunity to compare opinions and ideas.

Youth accepts new role in national affairs

Letting the rest of the world pass by was not an inclination of the majority of Chrysler High's 1972 population. Involvement became the main outlet for the understanding of national affairs.

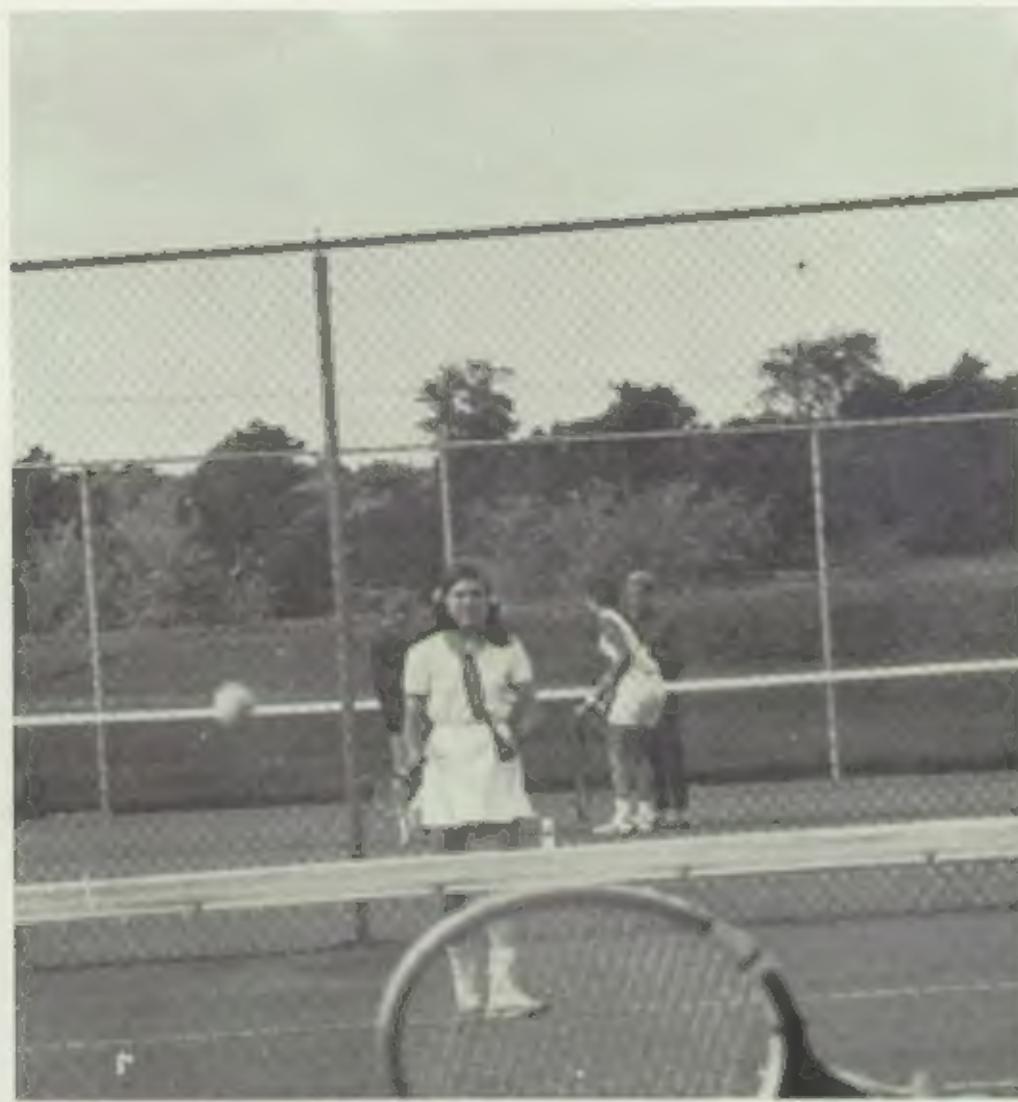

The young citizens of New Castle proved that today's youth is a vital cog in the complex mechanism known as the United States. Whether they were registering for the 18-year-old vote or the 19-year-old draft, or merely understanding the government's structure and functions, young adults shared new opportunities and responsibilities.

The success of a world power is not measured by the works of its government alone.

National prosperity requires the unique quality of FUSION from the people.

Women's liberation hits CHS as the girls' athletic program proves to be popular.

Visiting the State Women's Prison is sociology student Judy Thomas.

Registering to vote in the November election, Floyd Harris accepts a new responsibility.

nor High awaits completion.

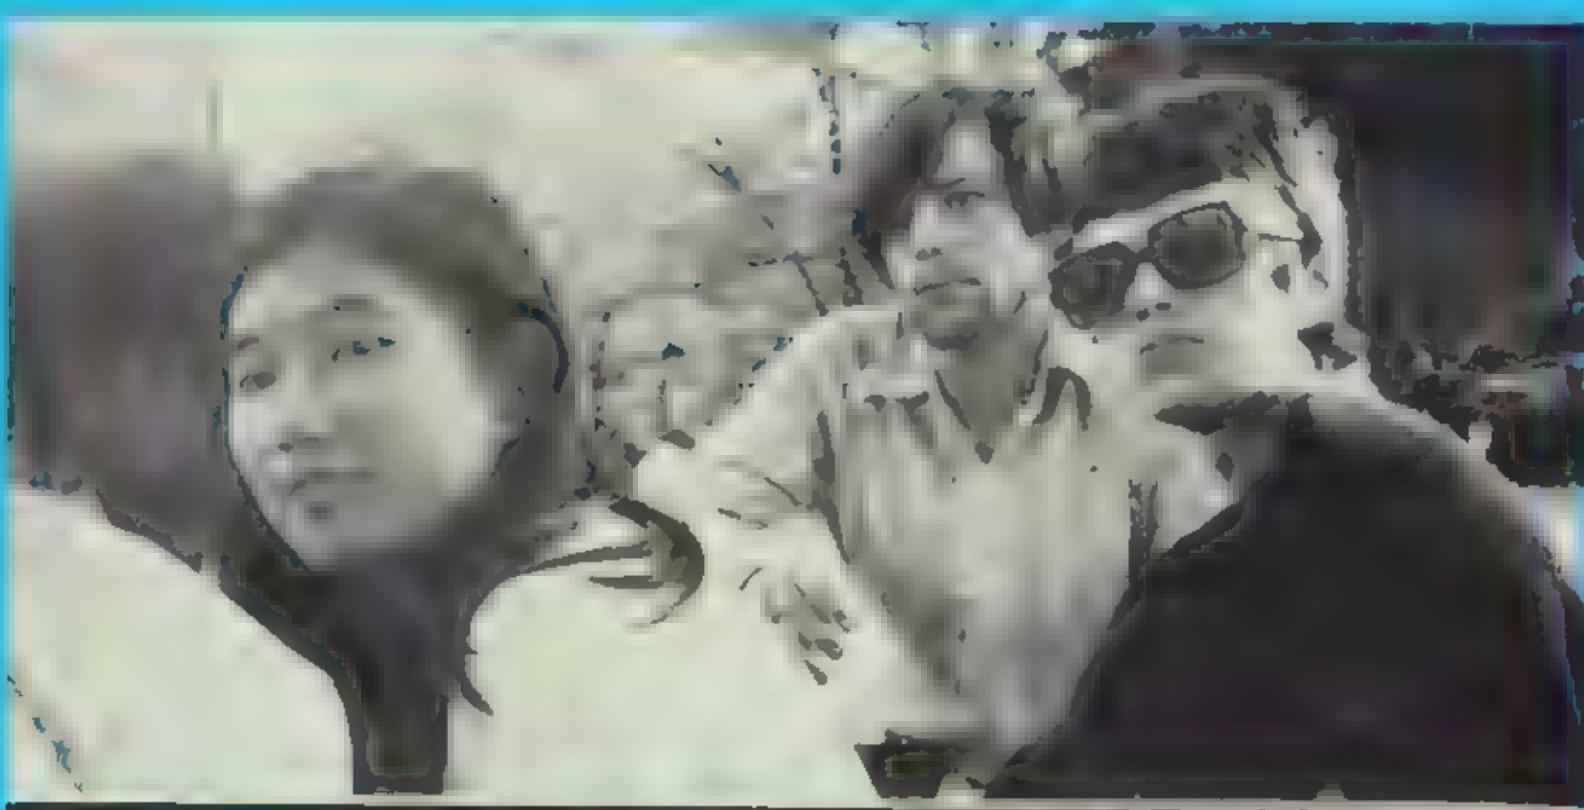

Involvement unites school and community

Pointing the way to a better New Castle are Dusty Asberry and Gary Berlin.

Students of CHS contributed their talents and boundless energies in attempts to improve New Castle. The willingness of the students to aid in fulfilling the needs and desires of the community led to a wholesome relationship between the young and the old. While some students were in charge of church services, others became involved in the First Nighters theatrical productions. A small yet concerned portion of Chrysler High engaged itself in the preparation and execution of activities at the Westminster House, the State Hospital and various day care centers. Active participation generated by young citizens spearheaded the success of the community, one whose people and purposes

DEMOCRATIC PERSPECTIVE

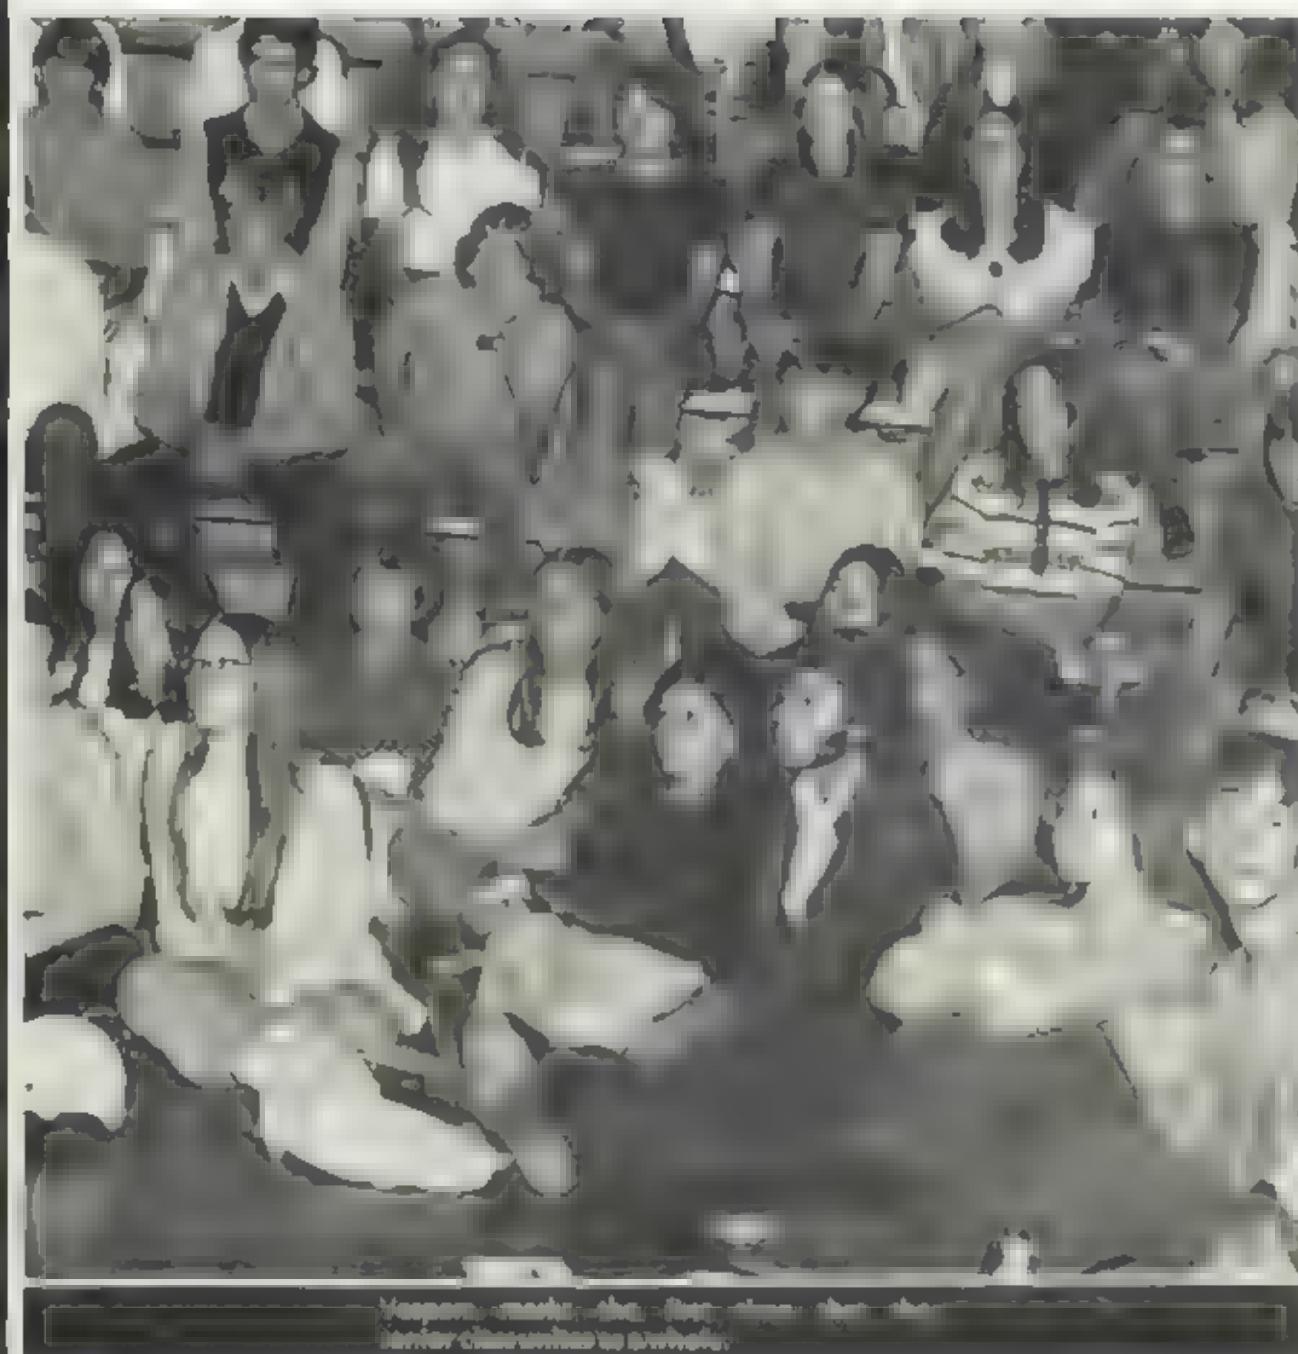

Students express themselves freely during an informal outdoor discussion.

School life revolves around mutual goals

Like animal crackers crowded in a cardboard box
CHS inhabitants shared the same container yet were free to expand both outside and within its walls
Fourteen hundred people met on common grounds in order to learn through common experiences
Every phase of student life was interrelated
School spirit and athletic competition were molded into one driving force
Contrasting ideas of opposing factions became connected through objectivity and compromise
All the divisions of the aggregate tied themselves together and formed a small community that boasted FUSION

With an immense smile, Diane D'Avino prepares for new challenges.

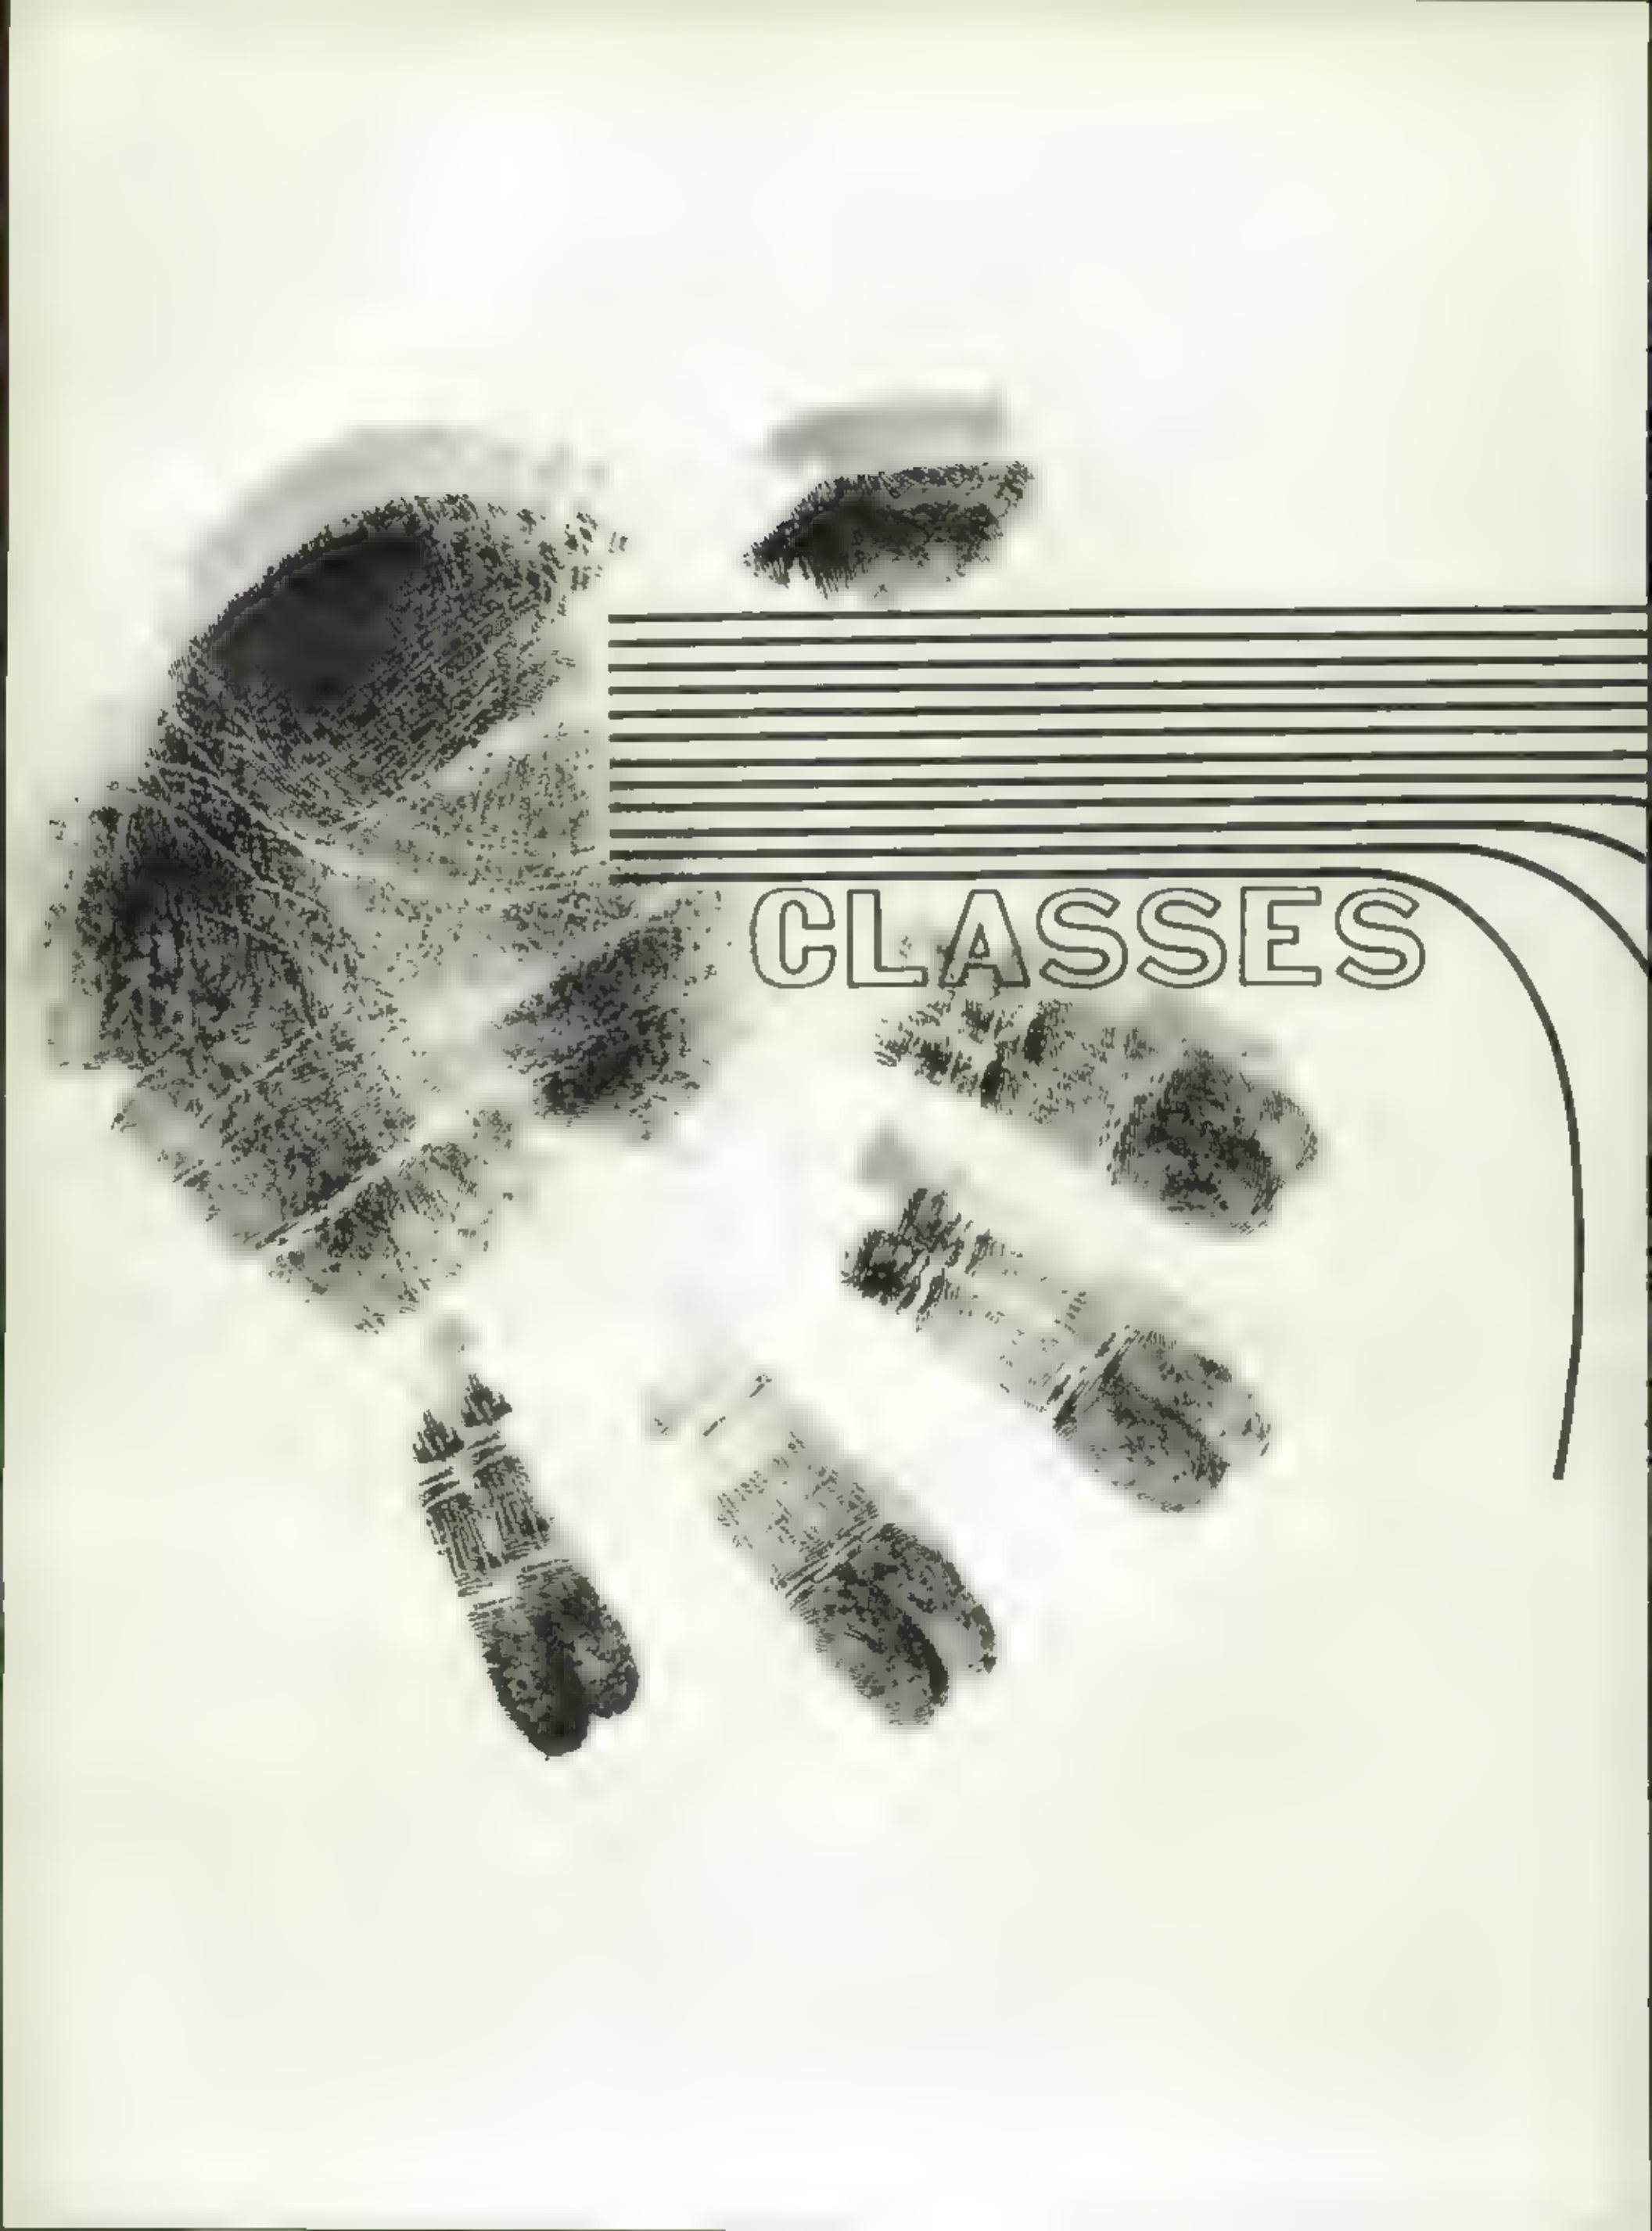

Responses make the difference.

CLASSES

English classes react to needs of individuals

Individuality and involvement were stressed in English classes with regular and college English being offered. Extensive reading was seen in the senior regular classes. Conferences and discussions with their teacher revealed the success of this course. On the college preparatory levels, sophomores gained valuable insight in techniques of good speaking. Juniors received background in American literature and creative writing, while seniors had in-depth study of grammar and increased their knowledge of world literature. Senior vocational majors were enrolled in applied English with emphasis on technical reading material.

Elective courses offered were drama, public speaking, debate, radio-T.V. and theater production.

Language instructors find new outlets for teaching

An understanding of foreign cultures and people was the goal of the language department this year with 375 students enrolled. Four years of Spanish and Latin along with three years of French and two years of Russian were available this year.

With modular scheduling, three students were able to pursue their third year of Russian, although it was not offered as a regularly scheduled class.

Spanish banquets, French and Spanish songs with the accompaniment of guitar, and use of tapes and films by Latin and Russian classes provided students with the opportunity to participate in class.

Working closely with FORSCO, the language students highlighted their year with the Foreign Bake Sale in November and the Foreign Student Day in April.

Showing there is more to French than examinations and quizzes, Mrs. Vanderleest leads her class in "Frere Jacques."

Making good use of the independent study time, Robert Lefevere tries the act of Mrs. Lefevere to be more active.

Latin doesn't seem like a dead language when a variety of interesting tapes are played by Mrs. Lefevere.

Students utilize new center for math resources

Providing the students with an atmosphere for study, the math department opened a resource center this year. Various materials pertaining to math were available at all times. The center, conveniently located in the departmental office, gave the students the opportunity to gain additional help.

Math courses were offered to students at all levels. Classes included this year were Algebra, Geometry, Analysis and Technical Math. Run on a group basis, classes were large group for the purpose of lecture and small groups which devoted their time to the discussion of material and to questions and answers. With the information obtained from large and small groups, the student was then given the opportunity to apply this knowledge in a lab situation.

The more advanced algebra students were allowed to work ahead individually outside the classroom.

Sophmores make use of the valuable math materials and quiet atmosphere in the newly opened math resource center.

With the aid of an overhead projector, Mr. Akey delivers an informative geometry lecture concerning congruent segments.

Lab work leads to success in various science classes

A world of test tubes, bunsen burners, and microscopes engulfed the minds of the young scientists at CHS. Interesting courses offered to the students this year were biology, regular and college chemistry, integrated science, advanced biology and physics.

Each course attempted to select those facts and principles which could be applied to daily living. Members of the staff worked to make each course more functional.

Integrated science gave the students the opportunity to receive their information entirely in a lab situation. Fitting right in with modular scheduling, the other classes operated on a group basis.

Advanced biology was unique because students devised and conducted their own lab experiments.

In a pensive mood Judy Pfeifer lets her mind wander from the physics lecture presented by new instructor Mr. Stephens.

Social science classes stress objectivity in society

Hoping to create understanding in the minds of the students about the involved society of which they are a part, the social studies department offered history, government, economics and sociology. Through informal discussions, lectures, movies, field trips and reading, juniors and seniors realized the adventure and knowledge to be gained. Looking at events objectively, students tried to examine both sides of an issue, to gather information and to learn how and why events occurred.

Interest in sociology gained momentum as 160 seniors were enrolled. Again girls were able to see first hand the operation of the Women's State Prison. Taking full advantage of guest speakers, students learned about crime, poverty and the welfare system.

New microfilms are excellent as aid in research

With 14,548 books, magazines, resource materials and information on almost every phase of life, the library has become a well equipped media center and a pleasant place to study. Tables were refinished during the summer and flags left by foreign students were identified by countries and displayed. The library took responsibility for the audio-visual materials. New books dealt with areas of art, recreation, biography and fiction. Relocation of the science fiction and mysteries made them more accessible.

A new microfilm reader aroused interest as students found it easier to get information from old periodicals and newspapers converted to microfilm. Microfilm material of special interest were collections of New Castle papers concerning the Civil War.

Involvement, participation key factors in music success

Classes in voice, strings, percussion, brass, woodwinds and music theory made the music department at CHS one of the biggest in recent years.

Performance and participation were key factors of success for the band and chorale, and both musical units were recipients of several honors throughout the year. After an absence of several years, the Chrysler High marching band performed at Indiana University Band Day. Chorale gave several excellent performances including a special convocation at Indiana Central College.

Going beyond the boundaries of the classroom, several students participated in Madrigal, Swing Choir, Stage Band, and the Solo and Ensemble Contests at Ball State University in February.

Proving the theory "perfect practice makes perfect," Senior Don Lee practices a difficult passage just before band rehearsal.

Presented four minor forms of a scale, the students in Mr. John Williams' music theory class express mixed emotions.

Many long hours of rehearsal are necessary for the choir to produce a pleasing sound for director John Williams.

Projects reveal skills, creativity of young artists

With sounds of paint flowing across canvas, the creak of the pottery wheel and chipping of sculpture constantly emerging from the rooms of the art department, the young artists revolved in a world of creativity and individuality.

With only one art instructor this year, the curriculum was reversed so the student could express himself in any phase of art. Various phases included pottery, sculpture, sketches, painting and weaving.

A special project completed was a delicately constructed stringed instrument called a dulcimer. Other projects ranged from wall hangings woven with yarn and beads to a three dimensional octagon covered with sketches and poems.

Favorite poems and sketches will give this three dimensional octagon special meaning to artist Charles McCall.

Competing in a difficult print in art class, Sen. Charles McCall is excited over the finished product.

The fact that pottery making takes patience as well as skill is evident to Mary Foster as she works to complete a bowl.

Industrial skills are emphasized for job training

Preparing young men and women for industry, the CHS industrial education department was divided into eight areas of study. Building trade classes concentrated on the planning of a house, hoping in future years to make those plans a reality. Woods classes constructed cabinets while electronic students applied the techniques of wiring by rewiring the school.

Being apprentices, the machinists were able to learn the skills of threading metals, reading micrometers and utilizing lathes. Through the material presented in the power and transportation class, people understood the qualities of a first rate mechanic. Other areas included drafting, metals and graphic arts.

B. Applying techniques learned in industrial arts, Senior Charles Vanney tests electrical outlets within the school

C. With powers of concentration and precision, Senior Ray Boyles adjusts the jigsaw in the machine shop

Business students apply skill to community work

Acquiring the skills of office machines proves difficult for junior Connie Hill, receives assistance from Mrs. Donovan.

Perfecting a skill for business or practical use was the goal of business students. New television and video-tape equipment, student teachers, and guest speakers provided a variety of activities. With eleven teachers, the business department gained recognition as the largest department. Additions included a data processing class conducted by Mrs. Mildred Donovan. Processing inventory records, bookkeeping and records kept by computer were essential sections of the course. Combining the business facilities of CHS and area schools provided the students a wider range of experience. Several CHS'ers took intensified lab at Hagerstown; Hagerstown and Union students united in the CHS co-op programs.

Skill developed from home ec inspires future

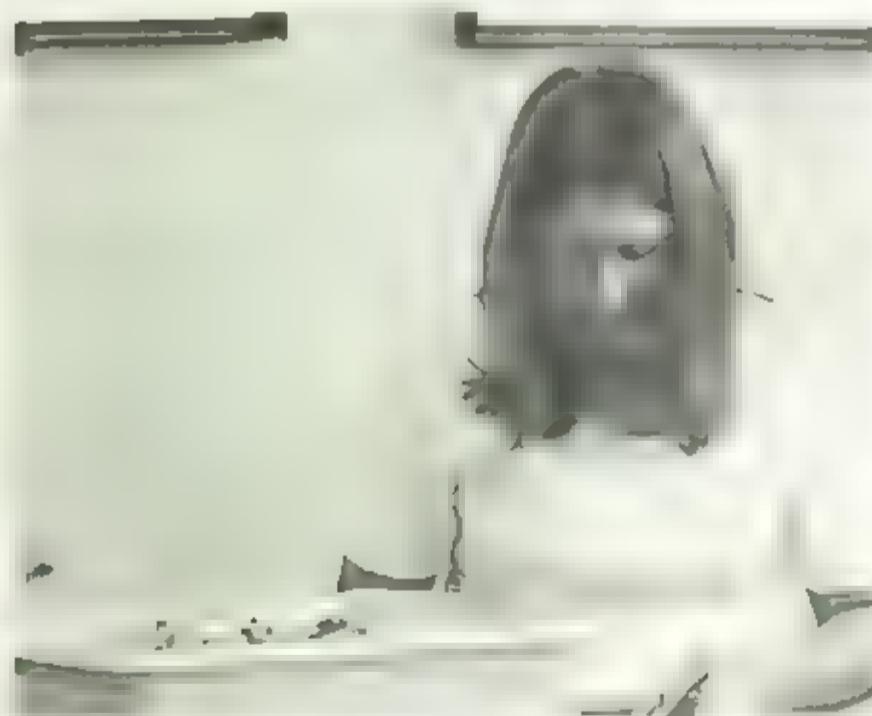

Community involvement was emphasized in the home economics department as students applied their knowledge to common situations. This was the second year for the Home Economics Related Occupation program. These students held afternoon jobs relative to the field of home economics.

The clothing department presented several fashion shows to the community. Girls modeled clothes that they had made themselves.

The kitchen planning contest was won by a boy this year. Senior Del Razor received this honor.

Christmas was the outstanding time of the year for the foods department. The girls served Christmas breakfast for all teachers and FHA girls.

Mmmmmmmmm! The aroma of Junior Joann Cochran's pumpkin pie is enough to tantalize any male in the vicinity.

Removing a seam is not an enjoyable task and Rita Dickerson hopes she doesn't have to repeat the process in the near future.

Style show models are Joyce Baptiste, Liz Brooks, Rose Cooper, Cindi Fulton, Janet Conner, Ginny Byrket and Cindi Caig.

PE classes develop individuals physically and mentally

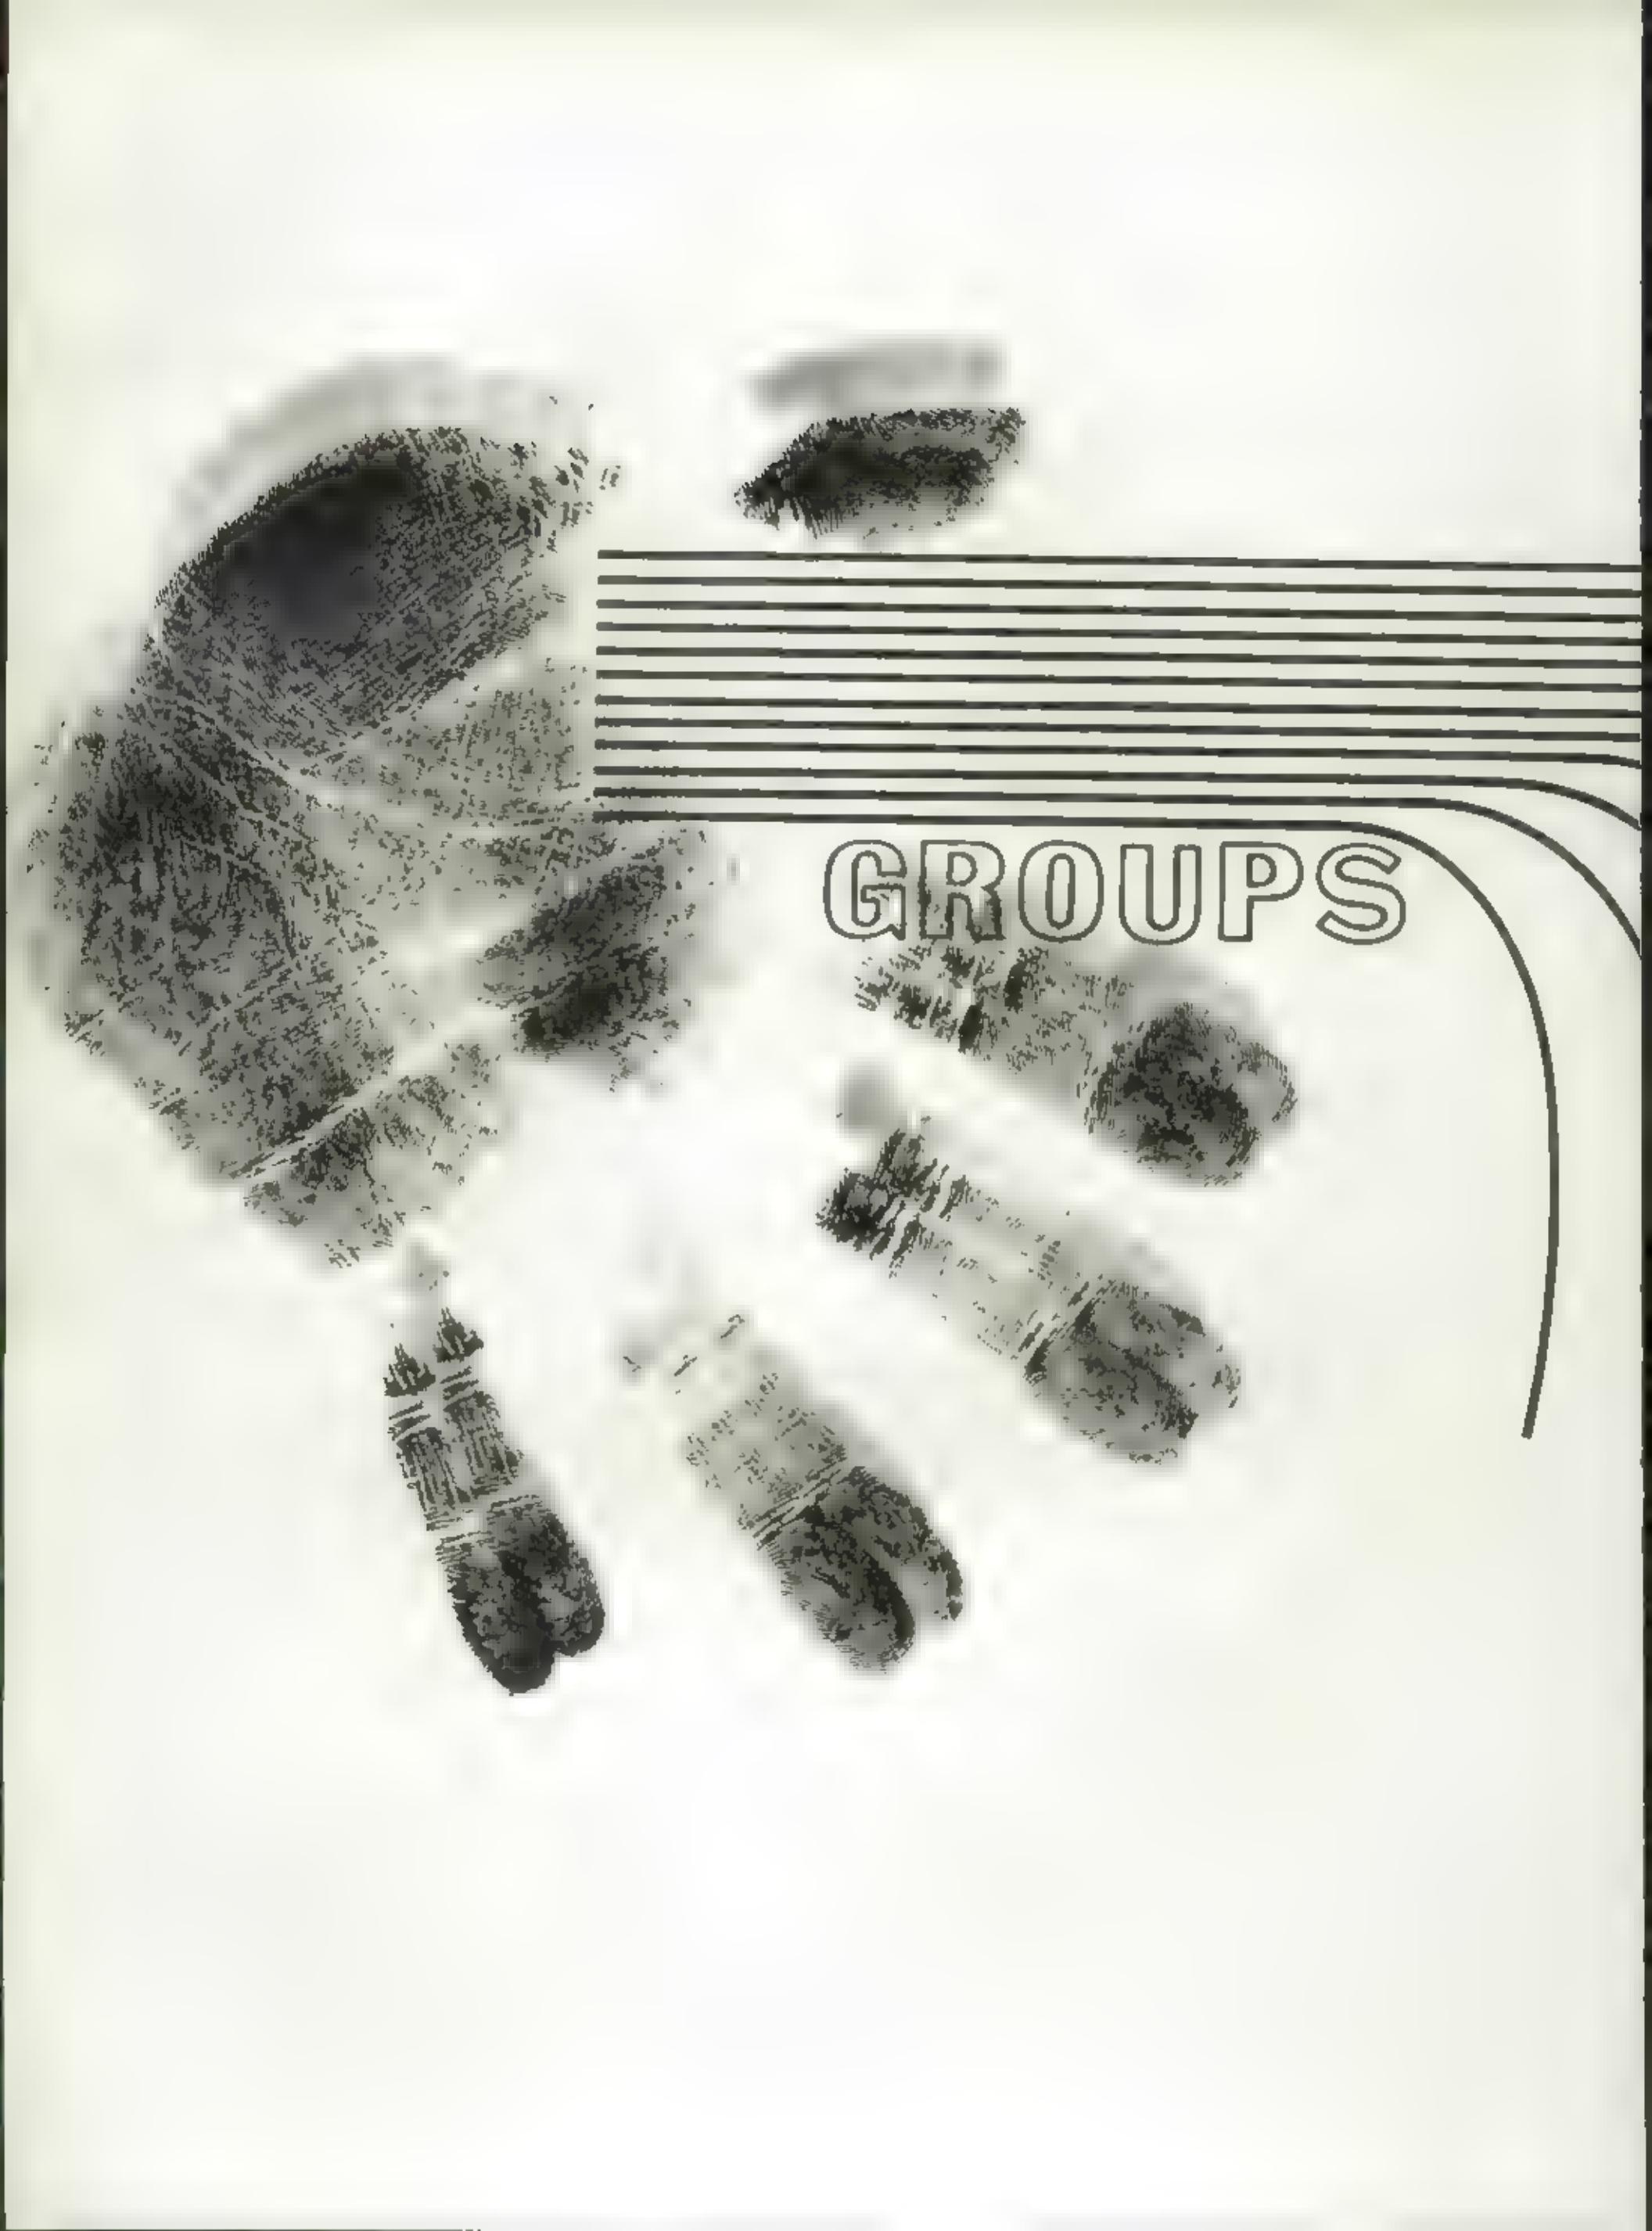

Assisting in the development of minds of young men and women, physical education classes were a valuable part of the curriculum for Chrysler High School sophomores. As well as stressing physical coordination and athletic competitiveness, the four instructors and their assistants concerned themselves with the social and emotional growth of the students.

A wide variety of sports and recreational activities including softball were popular with the participants as were dodgeball and volleyball. Various types of dancing brought the boys' and girls' classes together. Students used excellent facilities throughout the year, including the fieldhouse and its tartan floor, the tennis courts, and the outdoor track.

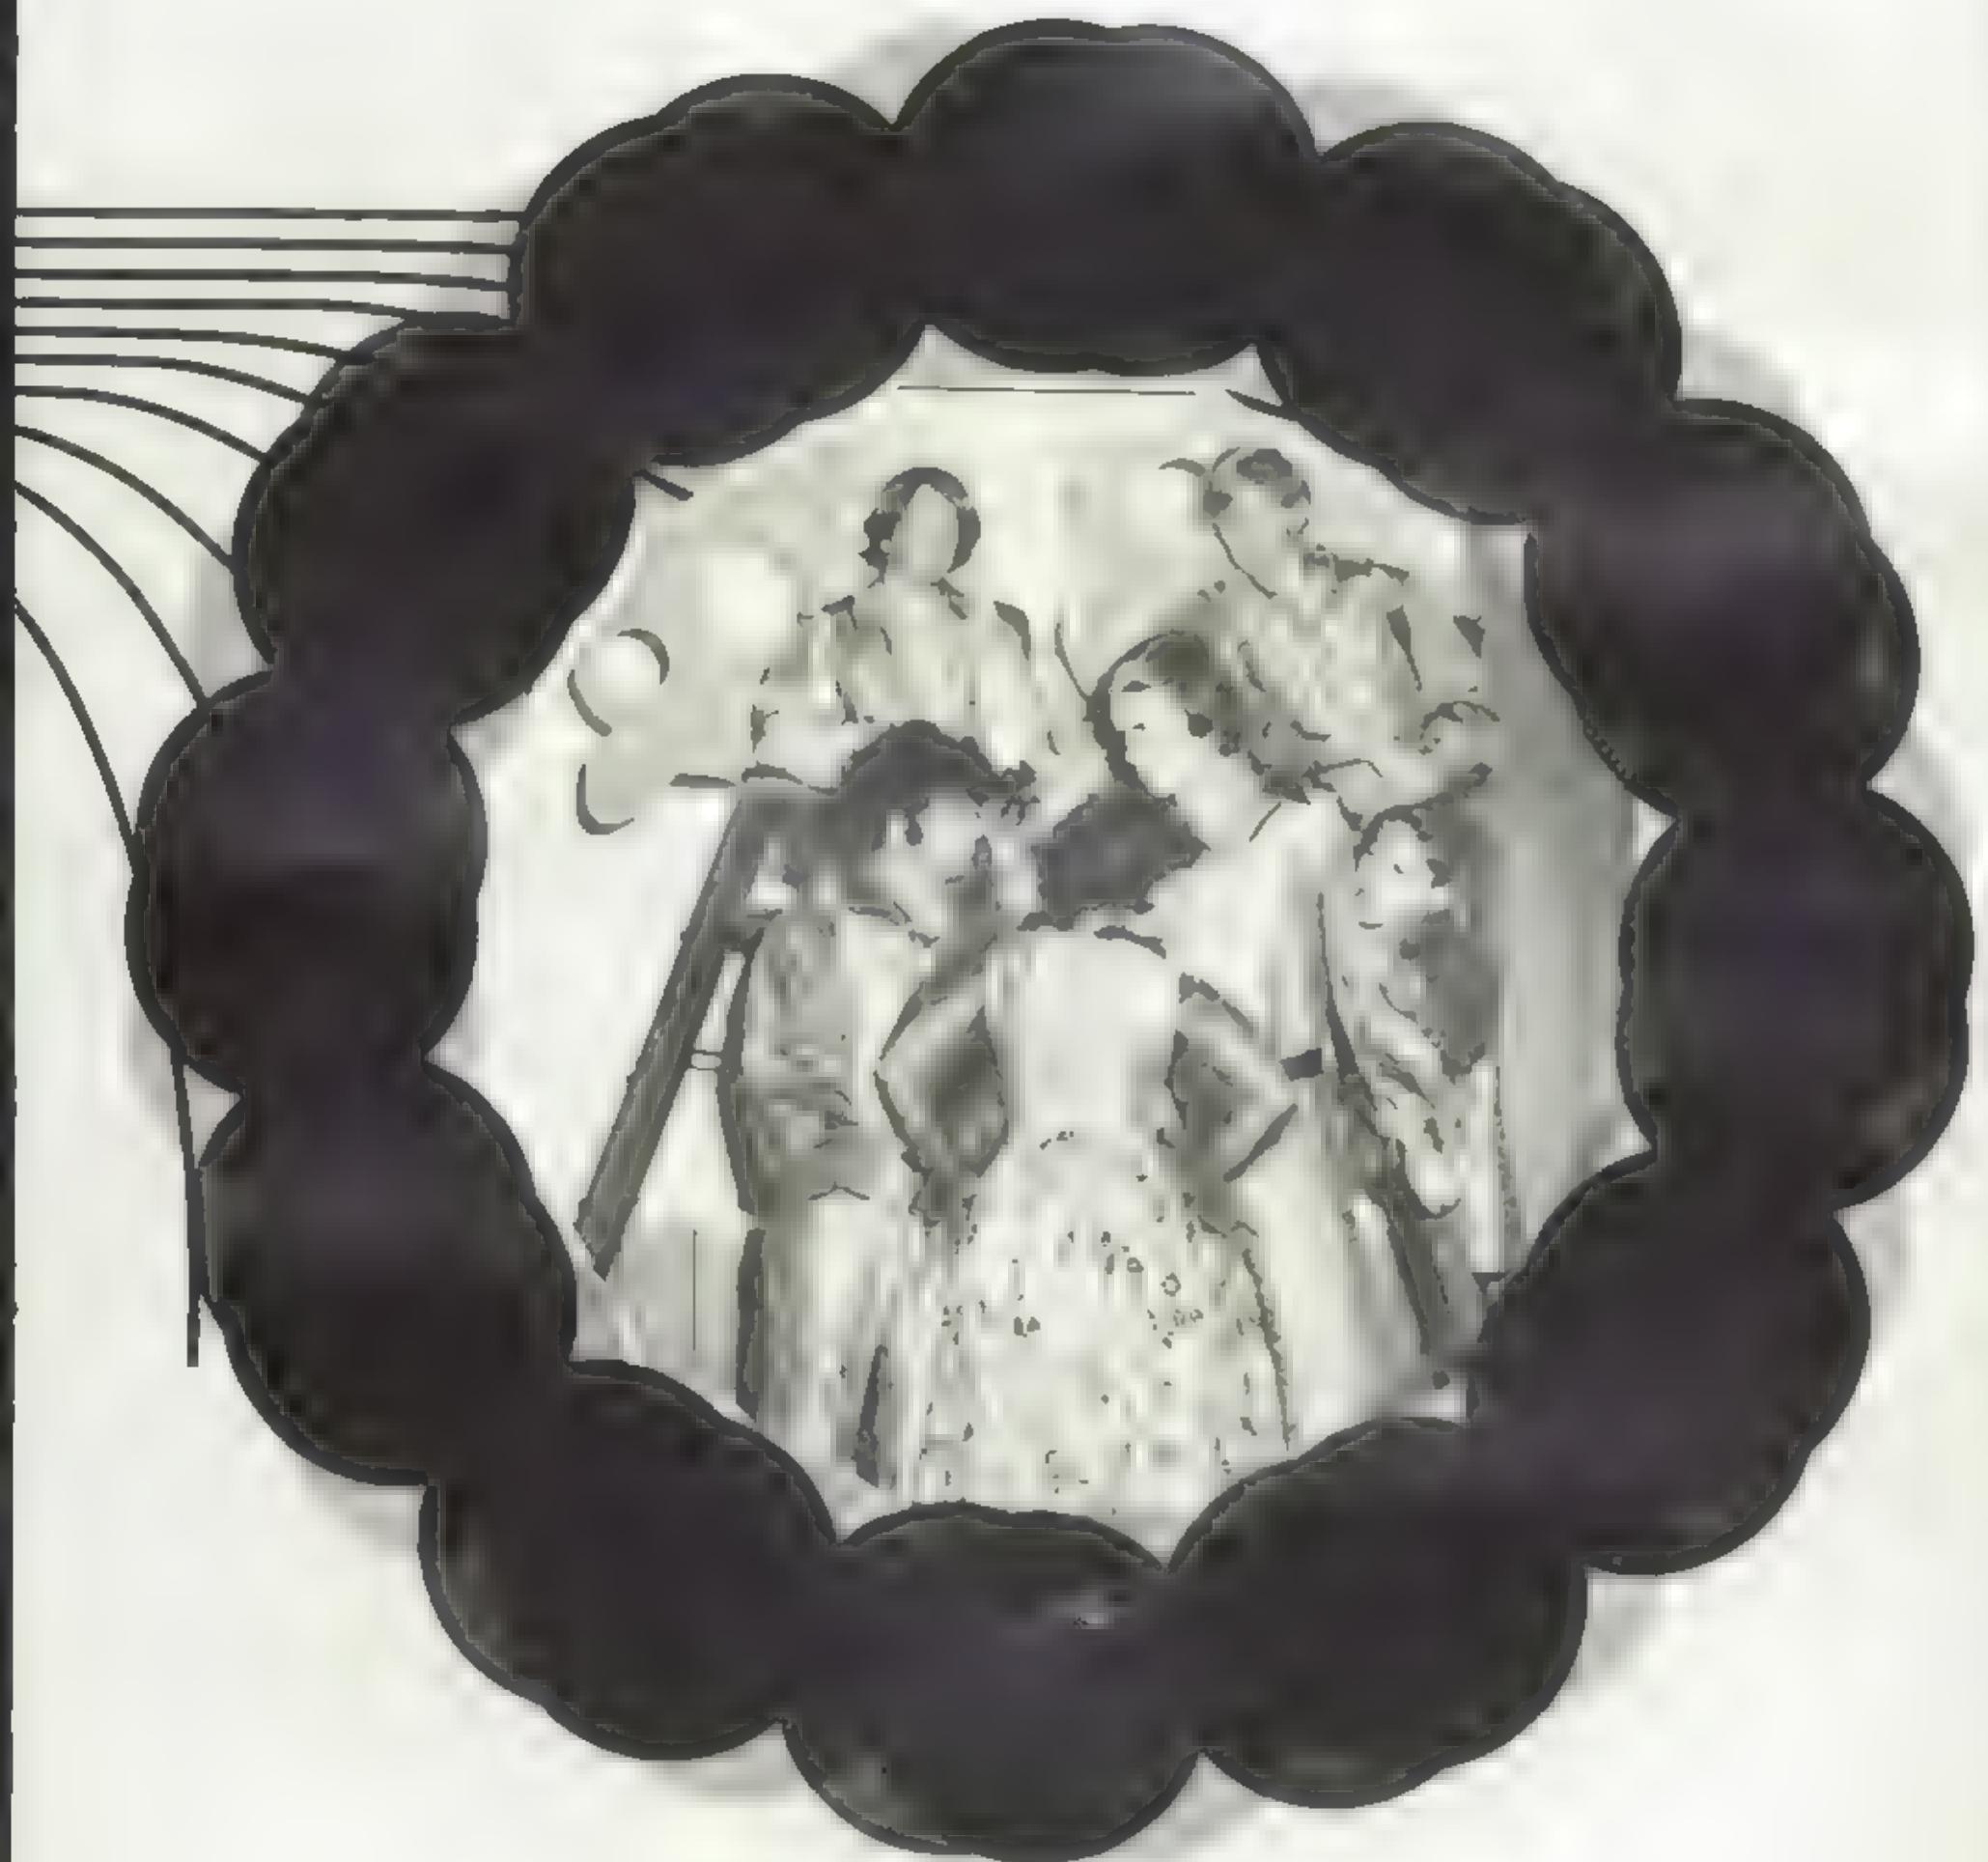

Warm-up exercises are a vital part of the beginning of every class, and even instructor Mrs. Donnell participates.

Tension mounts as the volleyball game progresses in which these students are demonstrating their skills.

GROUPS

Student Council reaches out to include all students

Involvement was the key to Student Council this year as it reached out to include many different people. By encouraging any interested student to be a member, Student Council had one of its largest memberships.

In close cooperation with the administration, the Council played an important role in decision making. One of the most controversial issues was the Council's decision on the student parking lot. Parking stickers were purchased by students who wished to park on the newly blacktopped surface.

Holiday activities included caroling at nursing homes and the semi-formal dance, with "Winter Wonderland" as the theme.

A new standing committee, Publicity, was added to work with Morale, Student-Teacher Relations, Imps, and School improvement.

Morale committee members unite in the effort of building school spirit by painting signs.

FORSCO Foreign Food Sale brings largest profit ever

A party at Pebble Beach Club opened the year for FORSCO and initiated foreign students Mary Hsu from Taiwan, Agneta Hjalm from Sweden and Anetta Stadler from Germany.

In November, the Foreign Food Sale was held and a record $162 was made. Members sold AFS Christmas cards and booster tags.

FHA combines talent, skills for better homes

Taking a variety of field trips, the members of the Future Homemakers of America broadened their experiences and learned things about life through outside activities. Among their trips were a visit to the Richmond court house to see a murder trial in process and to watch the outstanding Holiday on Ice at the Coliseum in Indianapolis.

Community projects played a big role in FHA and helped the girls prepare for added responsibilities later in life. They helped with the Head Start program during the second semester, giving demonstrations on nutrition for the family during the evening. A major project for FHA was sewing flags for the CHS Flag Corps. FHA saved the band approximately one thousand dollars by making the green and white flags for half time shows.

The sponsors were Miss Frances Eilar and Mrs. Mildred Garner.

Hero provides both classroom and job training

Twelve girls and six boys made up this year's HERO Club, a combined school and on-the-job training program. HERO was designed on a working arrangement between CHS and New Castle employers in order to help students receive classroom instruction related to their choice of business.

On May 16 HERO held its annual banquet at Welliver's Smorgasboard with members and their employers attending as well as school board members and the presidents of all vocational clubs at CHS. English instructor John Nead was the speaker.

Travels enrich education of Electronics Club members

A Christmas holiday trip to Benton Harbor, Michigan was the reward received by Electronics Club members as they worked hard selling concessions at basketball games to earn money for the trip.

They toured the Heath Kit Company in Benton Harbor, which makes general electronic kits and does industrial testing for many large business corporations. The club also visited the famed Kellogg's Company where they heard a short lecture about the company. Over spring vacation the club took their annual trip to Chicago.

Electronics Club members spent much of their time rewiring part of the school and repairing electrical equipment.

Officers of the Electronics Club were Kim Downing, president; John Dancer, treasurer; John Clift, secretary; Robert Lane, historian; Mr. Robert Johnson, sponsor.

OEA offers services to county March of Dimes

Members of Office Education Club raised money through many projects. OEA's special selling project was Photokube sales which brought a profit of $300. OEA members also joined other vocational clubs in pre-Christmas candy sales. Another money raising activity was the selling of cokes at home basketball games.

As a community service, OEA typed 400 forms for the March of Dimes which were sent to businesses throughout Henry County.

An activity each year is contests testing the member's skill in office occupations. Regional competition was held at Connersville, with State competition at Indianapolis, and National competition at Columbus, Ohio.

Members joined other vocational clubs in pre-Christmas candy sales. Part of the money raised through the candy sales was used to finance a trip to Chicago. DECA members also ran the bookstore which sold various school supplies.

DECA members climaxed the year with the annual Employer-Employee Banquet held in May at Hagerstown.

Thrill packed Roller Derby arrives at Chrysler High

The fast moving and thrilling game of Roller Derby came to New Castle through the sponsoring of vocational clubs OEA and DECA. The Midwest Jolters took on the Chiefs on January 11 in the New Castle Fieldhouse before a crowd of 4,300 and the Jolters skated over the Chiefs with a 45-42 victory.

The game of Roller Derby has rapidly become popular across the nation. During the game, five people were allowed on the rink at one time for each team. To score, the jammer had to get through the pack and come up to the back of the pack near the blockers. Every time the jammer passed a blocker he scored a point. Skaters used a portable rink set up on top of the fieldhouse tartan floor just before the game.

OEA and DECA made $450 for sponsoring the event. Because of its popularity, Roller Derby was brought back to New Castle by NFL for another game that was held in April.

Girls' Choir joins veteran Swing Choir and Madrigal

Believing practice makes perfect, the members of Chorale rehearsed continuously, perfecting new music and learning how to present a successful performance. The Chorale added two new performances to its list of accomplishments this year was the group combined with nearby schools and the Muncie Youth Symphony Orchestra in a concert at Ball State's Emens Auditorium, and later they presented a special convocation for the student body at Indiana Central College. Members of Chorale showed their talent at the District Solo Music Contest as they received ten first place and six second place ratings.

City helps band raise funds for flashy uniforms

Contests, parades, concerts and half-time shows kept the band extremely busy. Routines for the State Fair contest were perfected after 100 hours of hard work during the summer, topped off by a week of Band Camp at Marian College. As a result of their seventeenth place rating at the State Fair, the band was invited to attend the I. U. Band Day for the first time in several years.

During the year, the band presented two concerts, and members participated in the district solo and ensemble contest at Ball State and the state contest at Butler University. Members earned fourteen firsts in district competition.

After many, many hours of work the band and the Band Boosters Club raised enough money to buy new uniforms. They sold everything from raffle tickets to flashlights and received donations totaling $10,000.

Officers were Don Thompson pres.; Judy Bates, vice-pres.; Sara Kolodziej, secy.; Theresa Hagee treas.; and Robert Shauver, director.

After two years as director, Don Thompson has the experience to successfully direct the 128 performers.

Working for honors, NFL-Debate show talking talent

Completing its twentieth year as an active organization of CHS, National Forensic League again earned various recognitions. In January, NFL hosted its seventeenth annual solo speech meet and five hundred students from 23 different schools competed. Debate also hosted two tournaments.

The highest NFL honor possible, the double ruby, was awarded to senior speakers Dan Turnbull and Gary Dunnington.

Starting in February, NFL members competed in district competition as well as the IHSFA sectional, regional, and state.

Officers for NFL in 1971-1972 were Mike Carrender, President; Dan Turnbull, vice-president; Sylvia Dennison, secretary; and Denise Waters, treasurer. Coaches were Mr. Richard Hostetler for the debate team and Miss Gari Williams for the speech team.

Compiling research for a debate tournament takes lots of time and preparation as demonstrated by senior Mike Carrender.

Thespians receive new experiences at first workshop

Showing versatility, Thespians presented "Teahouse of the August Moon" in the fall and "Merchant of Venice" in the spring. The fall play was a story about an Army captain, his Okinawan friend and the exploits of the tiny village of Tobiki. The spring play surrounded the love affair of Bassanio and Portia, and several characters in the play were double cast. These plays marked the end of the Girls' Gym being used as a theatre as productions will move next year to the new Bundy Memorial Auditorium.

Mr. Dick Willis returned to CHS after a one-year leave of absence. Thespians were invited to a workshop held at St. Mary's College in Terre Haute in October where they presented a one-act play arranged by Mr. Willis based on four Shakespearean plays.

"Aesop's Fables" was produced for Children's Theater. Thespians helped as in recent years with the spring musical.

Actors prepare as 'Music Man' revisits stage

Once again the hilarious and wholesome characters of Meredith Willson's smash musical comedy, "The Music Man," brought audiences an evening of rare entertainment as the glittering costumes, colorful sets, sparkling songs, and lively dances filled the stage with brilliance and light.

The comedy concerned the life of a small Iowa city when a likable but dishonest salesman, Harold Hill, came to talk the people into buying band uniforms and instruments. Planning to swindle the whole town, Hill became attached to "Marian, the Librarian."

The stage also rang with such unforgettable melodies as "Gary, Indiana," and "Seventy-six Trombones," as the CHS Thespians, Orchestra, and Band combined with the Chorale to create a professional sounding musical.

Attempting to persuade Marian Paroo, Joan Yeater, into buying an instrument is smooth talking Harold Hill, played by Dan Turnbull.

'Hello Rosey' convocation sparks subscription drive

Attempting to provide a fresh, honest picture of Chrysler High School, the 1972 Rosennial Staff reflected the past year through expressive photography and detailed reporting. Miss Frances Halberstadt served as sponsor and supervisor for the young journalists.

A theme entitled "Fusion" was developed throughout the yearbook and was emphasized in the opening and closing sections. The staff employed new concepts in design for the cover, division pages and end sheets. Highlighting Rosennial's activities were the subscription drive, the second annual Rosennial Convocation, and the Publications Banquet held in May.

Judy Painter and Brian Francisco were co-editors while Sara Kolodziej held the duties of layout editor. In August of 1971 they attended a yearbook workshop at Ball State University.

Phoenix members work long hours on 8 page issues

Providing interesting, informative reading for students of CHS, the Phoenix was published bi-weekly throughout the year. New feature articles and projects kept members of the Phoenix staff busy.

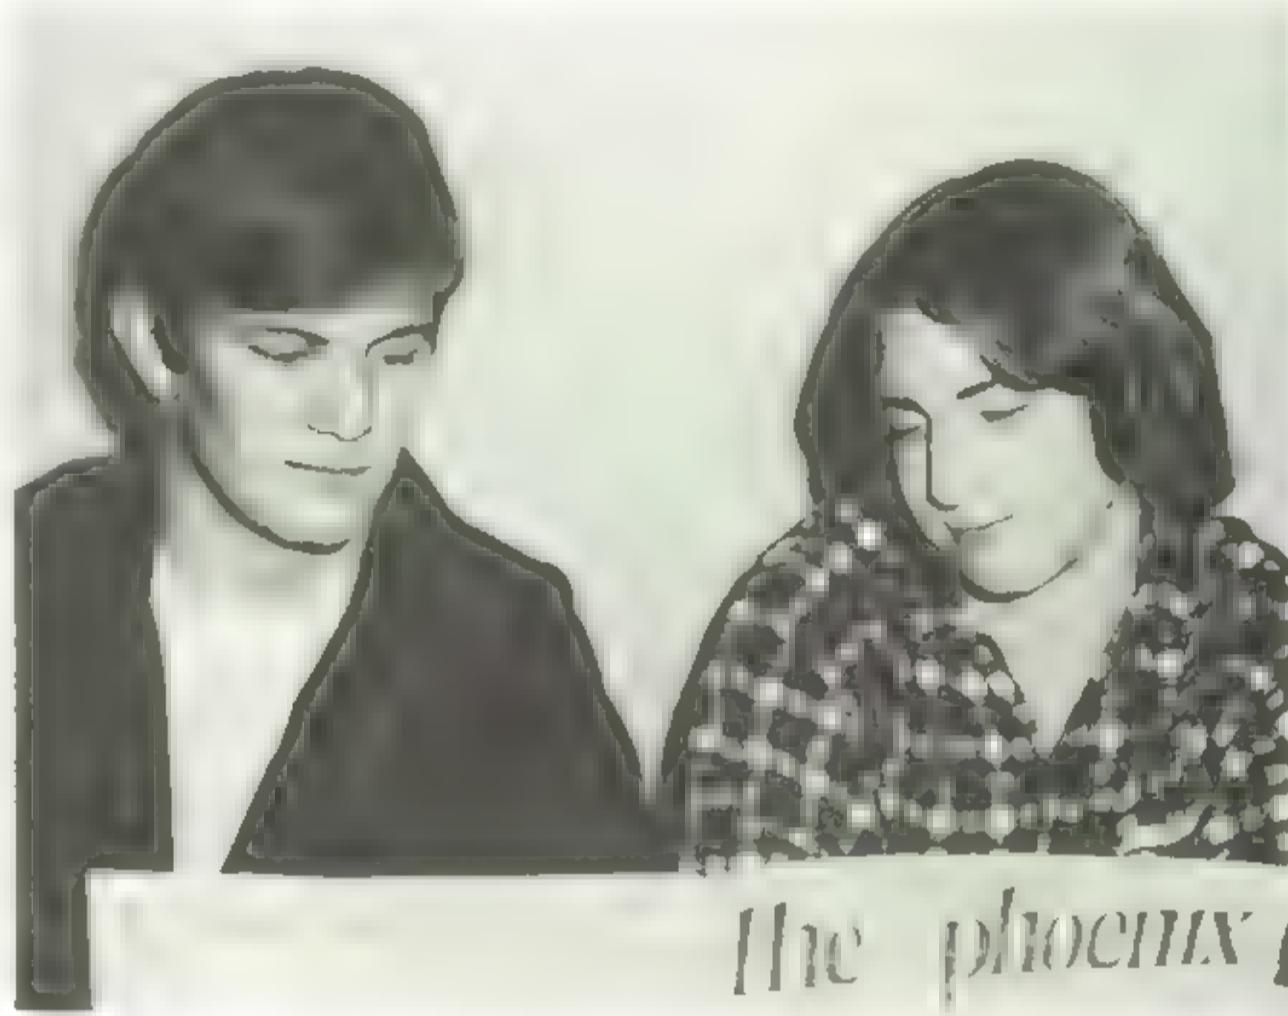

One of the new tasks of the staff was to aid the athletic department in producing basketball programs for the home basketball games.

To add interest to the feature page two new columns entitled "Heap of the Week" and "Let me Ride," a series written by Craig Bailey, were added.

Adjusting to the changing times, Phoenix issued a ten page paper which contained political ads from both parties. Also several eight page editions were issued during tourney time.

This year co-editors were Bill Wilson and Jan Crider. Miss Frances Halberstadt was the sponsor.

GAA slumber party highlights year of reorganization

The Girl's Gym was transformed into a giant bedroom as 75 GAA members participated in a sleepless slumber party in early December. Creating a social atmosphere a roller skating party was held in February after GAA members sold Trojan booster tags to raise funds to rent the city's new roller rink.

The Girl's Athletic Association continued an intramural program with ribbons presented in tournaments. At the spring GAA Awards Banquet, pins were awarded for first year attendance, letters for second year, and trophies for third year members. Susan Murray was announced as GAA Honor Girl on the basis of athletic ability, devotion, and sportsmanship.

Officers were Luanne Larrison, pres.; Susan Murray, vice-pres., Connie Jennings, sec'y.; and Ann Stairs, treas. Mrs. Connie Donnell was GAA club sponsor.

Cheerblock boosts morale of community and school

Spirit and good sportsmanship described the 1972 Girls' Cheerblock as the 110 member block ignited pep and never-ending enthusiasm throughout the year at all home games. Most members also traveled by bus to the important conference games out of town.

To help in boosting the morale of the school and the community, cheerblock members sold vests and T-shirts. The vests were Kelly green and white striped with the words "New Castle Trojans" printed on the front. The green T-shirts resembled football jerseys and also said "New Castle Trojans" on the front.

The cheerblock entertained at several half-times with creative skits and songs.

Officers were Andi Etchison, president; Marta Solomon and Connie Jennings, vice-presidents, Susan Murray, secretary; and Cheryl Clampitt, treasurer. The sponsor was Mrs. Shirley Smalley.

Green jerseys, enlarged block add to spirit

Led by the enthusiasm of Senior Spiritman, Eric Von Blattner Boys' Cheerblock revived itself this year, and its 40 members loyally displayed their backing by sitting as a block at the basketball games. The boys changed to a more casual look this year after selling booster tags in order to purchase green Trojan jerseys.

Adding much to the excitement of the game, the Boys' Cheerblock prepared humorous skits, designed and constructed the comical victory hoops, and rang the bell after each Trojan win.

Officers of cheerblock were Greg Dorr, president; Jim Staton, secretary; and Jim Oldham, treasurer. Mr. Roscoe Rogers was sponsor.

Lettermen sell preview; FCA holds huddles

Helping in school functions as a service to the school and the community, Letterman's Club bought new equipment for the training room. 'N' Men raised money by selling the magazine Indiana Basketball Preview which gave the New Castle Trojans a Number 1 ranking in pre-season polls. A big function of the club was the annual campout held in the spring, near the end of school.

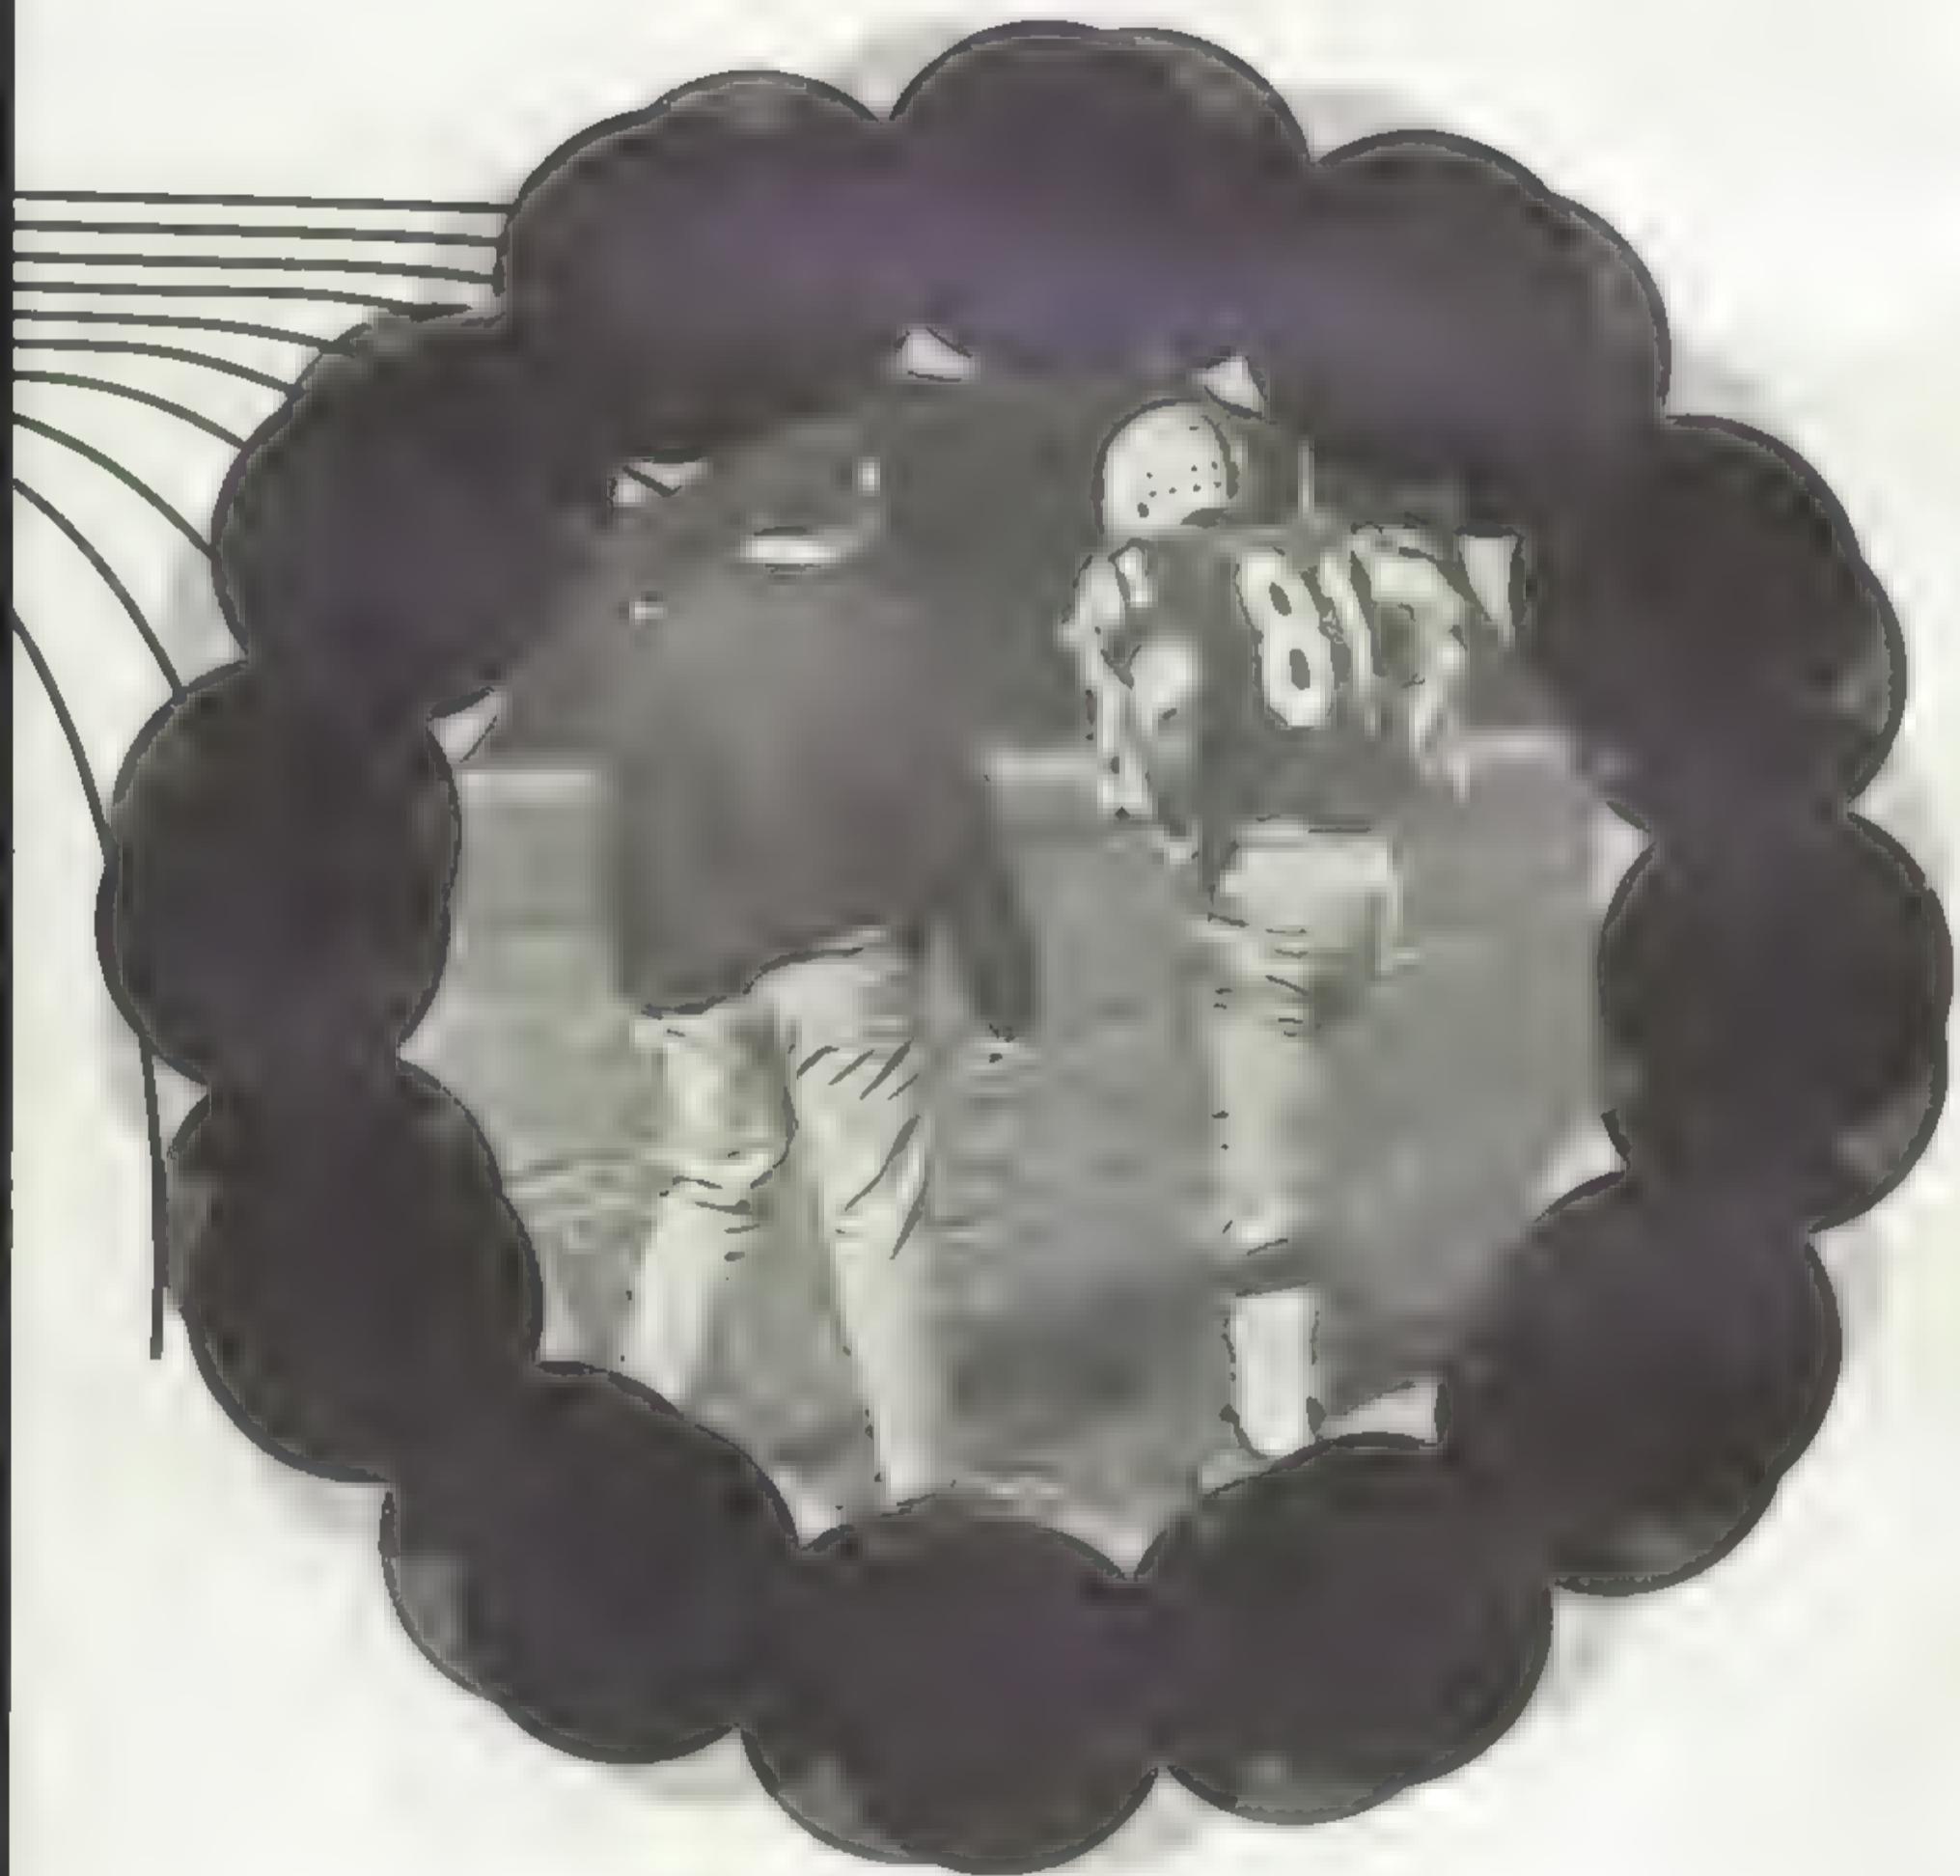

A change occurred in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. This year FCA members had their own huddle groups which met once a month in the home of a sponsor or member. FCA also participated in a summer conference at Denison University in Granville, Ohio, where they met several famous athletes.

Determined cross-country squad outruns opponents

An outstanding seven win, three loss record was compiled by Wilbur Veach's harriers. A perfect 7-0 record against non-conference foes vanished in N.C.C. play. Conference foes handed the runners all three defeats, and an eighth place finish in the conference match.

Underclassmen provided the two top runners in junior George Dickerson and sophomore Mark Neal.

A seventh in the sectional match promises the harriers future success with eight lettermen returning next year.

Senior members were Kelly Cartwright, Tony Jarvis, and Don Hardwick. Underclassmen were juniors Steve Eaton and Don Bennett and sophomores Mark Neal, Terry Bowers, James Lovell, and Lynn Bowers.

As the offensive squad comes face to face with their opponents, Jerry Miller prepares to make a hand-off to a Trojan back

Playing against many highly rated teams proved too much for Coach Hans Sheridan's Trojans as they placed seventh in the North Central Conference and posted a one win, nine loss season. The most exciting game of the season occurred when the Trojans broke their losing streak and defeated Logansport. When it appeared that victory had eluded New Castle once again, Craig Wolf returned a kickoff 85 yards for a touch down and a 22-15 victory at Logansport in the last 59 seconds of the conference game.

Senior quarterback Jerry Miller, who threw five touchdown passes, led the Trojans in offense. Leading scorer was Wolf who totaled 36 points.

Junior Rick Purvis led the defensive squad with 158 tackling points. Seniors who received All State Honorable Mention were Greg Bell and Jerry Miller. All North Central Conference winners were Bell, an offensive guard, Miller, quarterback and Wolf, defensive safety. Junior Rick Purvis, an inside linebacker, received honorable mention.

Leading several games at half time, only to lose in the second half, Coach Jerry Michel and his reserve squad brought one victory to Chrysler when they defeated their arch rival, the Muncie Central Bearcats. The tennis Trojans placed third in the tough sectional play. Dan Clawson fought his way into the finals before he was eliminated.

Despite a season without victory, the wrestling squad achieved some degree of success. The grapplers had only three returning lettermen and eighteen underclassmen. In the conference match, the wrestlers escaped the basement into seventh. Bad luck hampered the squad as several matches were decided by only a few points.

The theme of the squad was "Individual Success." This was achieved in both conference and sectional. David Cook finished first in the conference and second in the sectional. Greg Dorr was fourth in the conference and third in the sectional. Placing third in the sectional were Rick Foster, Troy Hill, and Bill Hinman. Foster and Cook reached the regional, but they were unable to advance.

Trojans win North Central Conference championship

Winning the North Central Conference basketball championship with a 6-1 record was only one of the outstanding achievements by the Trojans. The leading scorer in the North Central Conference was junior center Kent Benson. The other four starters were Senior forwards Jerry Miller and Dave Billingsley and Senior guards John Martin and David Snodgress. Rounding out the Senior members were Greg Bell and Kelly Cartwright.

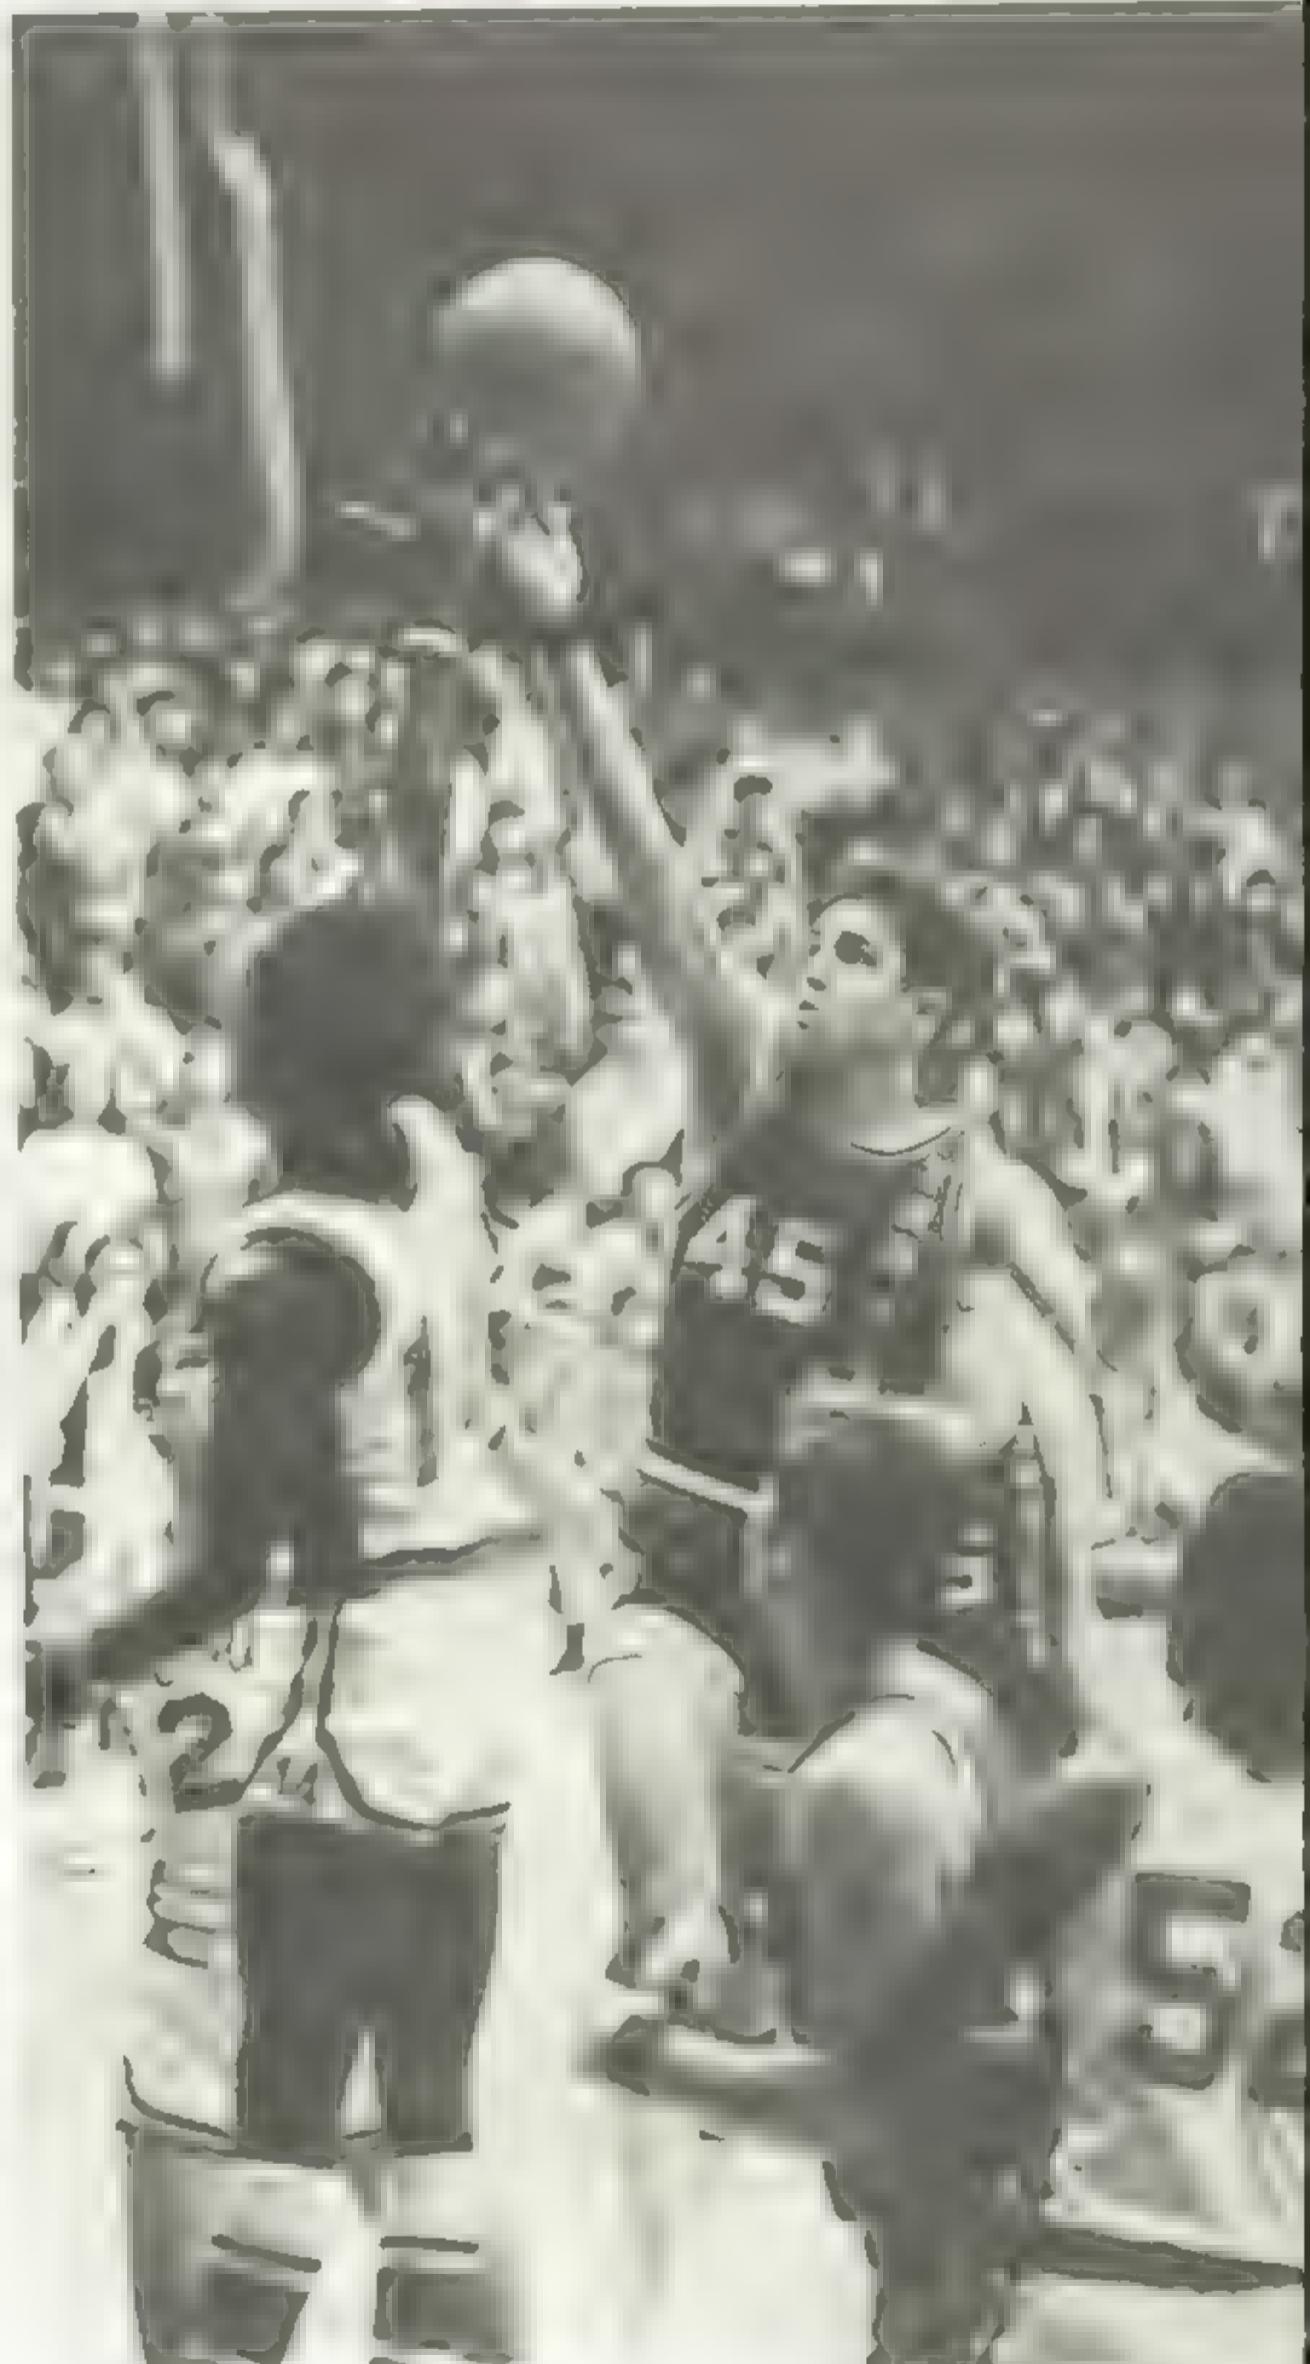

A regular season record of 17-3 provided the team with anything from a first to sixth place ranking in the state press polls.

Competition in the sectional proved tough as opponents played controlled ball. The Trojans pulled ahead, however, during tourney play and won against Knightstown, Tri-High, and Mt. Vernon. Yorktown's under-rated Tigers ended Trojan dreams for a state championship season by winning the first regional game, 71 to 59.

Hustling on defense, Senior guard John Martin throws an arm up in hopes of deflecting an opponent's jump shot.

Senior Dave Snodgress drives through a cluster of Rebels for an easy bucket to lead the way to a Trojan victory.

Colts compile excellent sixteen win, four loss record

Providing a testing ground for future varsity basketball players, the Colts also had an outstanding 16-4 season. Allowing all the players considerable playing time was the aim of Coach Larry Meyer as he prepared for future seasons. Showing considerable promise while playing both varsity and reserve were juniors Kevin Huse, Bob Miller, Dave McSherry, Vince McGrady, and sophomores Dennis Kinser and Terry Ross. Other starting regulars were sophomore Terry Bowers and freshman Mike Haynes.

The Colts' record of this year exemplifies the talent of the players. With no set line-up, the team had to learn to adjust quickly. Winning many come-from-behind and close contests, the team proved its spirit and aggressiveness. Four juniors, two freshmen, and ten sophomores comprised the reserve basketball squad.

Cheerleaders ignite Trojan fever in capacity crowds

Familiar cries at Chrysler included "Refuse Defeat" and "S-P-I-R-I-T." Showing enthusiasm and backing the Trojans were Seniors Sandy Upchurch, Judy Painter, Pat Trester and juniors Kay Green, Amy Garrison, and Tricia Stanley. Supporting the Colts were juniors Jenny Bowman and Judie Bates and sophomores Renee Etchison and Julie Hutson. Assisting the cheerleaders were Miss Gloria Castelluccio and Mrs. Elizabeth Abrams.

In his first year as Athletic Director, Mr. Frank Kovaleski mixed business and athletics successfully. In charge of the entire athletic department, Mr. Kovaleski scheduled all sports events, kept files on eligible athletes, and was responsible for purchasing equipment. Serving as Assistant Athletic Director, Mr. Horace Cook was in charge of ticket sales, scheduling practices, ordering letter jackets and awards, and taking care of insurance.

Members of the 1971-72 reserve cheerleaders were Julie Hutson, Renee Etchison, Jenny Bowman and Judie Bates.

Gates, Walker, relay team advance to Regional action

As the 1971 track season came to a close, Coach Wilbur Veach's Trojan thinkies reflected on a record of five wins and six losses. The highlight of the season occurred when New Castle edged favored Greenfield, 56-51, to win their own invitational. With 13 returning lettermen and many strong inexperienced underclassmen, the thinkies exhibited marked improvement as the season progressed.

Top man on the team was Ken Gates with 94 points. Craig Wolf, Ken Gates and Greg Dorr led the dashmen while Paul Walker excelled in the 880 yard dash. Mike Hedrick, leading pole vaulter, won honors in this event. Sectional victories were Gates in the 100 yard dash and the 880 relay team composed of Gates, Dorr, Polston, and Wolf.

Crossing the finish line ahead of everyone else, Senior distance star Paul K. Walker captures in other fast place.

Strength and co-ordination are essential for a successful pole vault as exhibited by junior Mike Hedrick.

Extra effort provides added inches for Sophomore Randy Polston, a consistent top finisher in the long jump.

Swimmers show improvement throughout the season

Despite the handicap of having no school swimming facilities, Coach William Williams' team completed the season with six wins and nine losses. Winning many honors for the tankers was junior Bruce Weeks in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle. Jim Holloway and Bill Cunningham shared victories in the breaststroke, while captain Jeff Osborne led the team in the individual medley. Senior Larry Hoover was the varsity diver for the Trojans and Stu Owens swam the 200 freestyle.

With only five seniors departing from this year's squad, the young Trojan tankers have great hopes for the future. Now that the Olympic size swimming pool in the Junior High is a reality, both returning lettermen and future swimmers are eager for next year's season to begin.

Golfers finish fifth in conference, sectional matches

After winning six of the first seven matches, the 1971 golf squad found tougher competition in the latter half of the season and finished with an eight win and five loss season. A two stroke loss to NCC champ Marion was one of many heartbreaking defeats suffered by the linksmen.

Sectional play brought the Trojan golf squad a chance to avenge earlier defeats. Fifth place was a respectable showing for the determined golfers, but it fell short of regional qualification.

The linksmen were paced by sophomore Dan Caffoe with a 78 average. Seniors Greg Goff, Joe Fuller, Bob Saint, Robin Wood, and junior John Branscum rounded out the varsity squad. Leading the varsity and reserve squads was Coach Larry Meyer.

Excellent placement of his tee shot helps Senior Joe Fuller pick up a birdie three on the second hole.

Young Troymen enjoy successful baseball campaign

During the spring of 1971, the baseball team enjoyed another season of success. Compiling a fifteen win, seven loss record, the Trojans were tough despite having only five returning lettermen. Fifth place was the best the diamondmen could do in the conference, however, as inexperience cost the team three close victories. The Logansport game provided the greatest excitement of the season. The come-from-behind six to five victory was climaxed by Jerry Miller's homerun in the final inning. Jerry Lamberson's homerun had tied the score in the fifth.

Post season play offered the Trojans a chance for their first back-to-back sectional crowns. Blue River and Carthage were unable to stop the hitting attack, and the Trojans were on their way to the regional. Frustrated New Castle hitters were not able to figure a tough Warren Central pitcher, however, and dropped the first regional game three to zero.

Summer batmen earn eighteen wins, drop one

Fifty three victories against only one defeat highlighted the first three years of the summer baseball program. The 1971 squad contributed eighteen victories and the single set-back. The loss to Muncie North was the team's only hitting lapse of the year as they averaged over six runs per game. Outstanding pitching was another plus, allowing less than three runs per game.

Post season tournament action was swept by the Trojans in two games. Muncie North, after defeating Carmel faced New Castle and a seven to two defeat. Muncie South, which had emerged victorious from a group of teams consisting of Rushville, Madison Heights, and Muncie Central fell to New Castle in the final game, 7 to 4.

Trojanettes gain valuable experience in first season

The girls' athletic program was expanded during the spring of 1971 as softball and track were added to the curriculum. Coach Carol Lewis' softball team compiled a record of one win and five losses.

Following closely after softball, the girls' track and field team went into action. Completing the first season without a victory, the Trojanettes gained valuable experience for the future. Coach Glona Castelluccio and her team participated in the District meet held at Lawton High School. Qualifying for the Regional at Fort Wayne were Susan Feeley, seventh in the 440 yard dash and the team of Melody Mastin, Patty Kraft, Nan Crowe and Mary Hunter, sixth in the 440 yard relay.

Girls set winning records in inter-school competition

With a perfect record of eight wins and no losses, the tennis team coached by Mrs. Joy Jackson began the girls' sports program. Taking the first three places in singles and the second, third, and fourth in doubles during Regional action, CHS filled six of the eight state spots. Senior Shelly Sheats and sophomore Kim Coffey placed fourth in State doubles.

Following tennis, the volleyball team sought action, coached by Mrs. Sheila Jackson. The team was drilled in serving, spiking, set-ups, and team play. Varsity compiled a six win, two loss record and the reserves, five wins and three losses. For the first time Chrysler held the District 5 Volleyball Finals and placed third out of eight.

The girls' basketball team appeared in new uniforms and played full court. Mrs. Connie Donnell and her squad represented their school well as the varsity's record was eight wins and one loss and the reserves had three wins and three losses. Losing only six seniors this year, the team has a great outlook for coming years.

Together, creative juniors work to 'Colour My World'

Splashes of color greeted 340 guests to Junior Prom 1971. As they entered the realm of "Colour My World," the couples were surrounded by a collage of light and sound. The juniors worked many hours decorating the Girls' Gym as they painted a large psychedelic sun behind the bandstand. Colorful paintings and silver disks were strung along the sides, creating a glittering effect.

The stage was set May 15 as Bob Hecker and his Orchestra provided the mood for the couples enjoying the kaleidoscopic atmosphere. At the hour of eleven, Ron Keaton, the master of ceremonies, announced the new queen. All eyes fell on Becki Foster as she was crowned by the Junior Class President Craig Bailey. The glowing Becki added the final sparkle to a memorable evening.

Summer finds students involved with outdoor activities

While the heat of summer lingered on, 1300 CHS students took life a slower pace. Tanned faces and bare feet cluttered the sidewalks downtown. Drive-in restaurants were crowded as many lived on a diet of trench fries and cokes.

Life, for some, was summer school at 7:30 in the morning. Others were busy working at jobs, traveling, or marching. The athlete could be found practicing for football, tennis, and cross country and everyone could be seen relaxing under the sun. As the temperature rose and the humidity increased, many teenagers looked for refuge at the local pools and beaches. Summer was the time for cut-off blue jeans, suntan lotion, concerts, and the many other activities that made up the summer of 1960.

Driver Education offers many different challenges to students wishing to master the art of driving.

Switzerland seems far away to Senior Luanne Carlson as she is thinking of the summer that she will spend there.

Walking alone, youth attempts to express individualism

Trying not to lose their identity in the machinery of the student body, many individuals looked for something to set them apart from the group. It could be a place, such as a favorite spot in the country where one could sit and ponder. Many found their individualism in forms of expression like music and art. It might be achieved in the fulfillment of a goal; a challenge, a dream. Golf and tennis exemplified ways in which the competitive-minded could develop themselves.

Escape from the crowd and its demands came in many modes, but most individuals realized that in order to make Chrysler High function successfully, some sort of student body must be formed.

Running through the town during the early morning hours, Senior Bill Conk proceeds to exercise his freedom.

Chrysler proves to be more than just a place of study

Assignments, projects, tests
Students were busy throughout the year. School was not only a series of labs, small groups, and lectures, it also was people. Chrysler High was tables and chairs pushed together where seniors could talk, take in a game of chess, or just rest. It was the rivalry between the three classes, unexcused absences, jammed lockers, and gossip in the hallways.

CHS was whatever the student wanted it to be. Some thought of the school as a prison; and for them, it was one. Others were apathetic toward the school. They reported to classes at 8:15, did what they had to, and left at 2:55. They got very little out of the system. Still others believed Chrysler offered an opportunity to become acquainted with different people and new ideas. To these students, the school served as a source of enrichment. CHS showed many facets to its students.

Reaching out for someone and then finding him can be one of the most beautiful experiences in high school.

Sparkling Queen Judy glows at Winter Wonderland

Snowmen and stars welcomed 160 couples in January to a land of winter fun. The walls of the Girl's Gym came alive with scenes of little children playing in the snow. Stars glistened from the ceiling while a fountain sparkled softly over colored lights. The cafeteria was transformed into a ski lodge with a fireplace and candle light.

Dancing to the sounds of rock group Reformation II or gazing at the decorations, the guests looked forward to 11:00 for the coronation of the queen. Ending the suspense, Chris Piros placed the crown upon the head of the new queen—senior Judy Painter. Her court was made up of Janet Conner and Pat Trester, seniors; Jenny Bowman, Kay Green, and Tricia Stanley, juniors; and Mary Dicken, Sheila Fultz and Lindy Teel, sophomores. It was a beautiful way to end a lovely evening.

Unique decorations and an air of anticipation meet sophomore couple Cindy Calfee and Jay Heck as they proceed to the gym.

Students act out various roles in different convos

Student participation was the key factor to this year's convocations. To kick-off the yearbook subscription drive, the Rosennial staff took on the difficult task of acting like small children and showing what the Rosey is like through their eyes.

Members of band, Chorale, and Thespians combined their talents to present a Chaucer Christmas. Working behind the sets and in front of the lights, their efforts evolved into an hour of music and drama.

The year saw a fewer number of convocations, but more pep sessions were interspersed during the year. School involvement played an important part at CHS.

Reminiscent of Chaucer's day, Senior Viola Shelley sings an aria during the Christmas program as lords and ladies look on.

Seven girls, six sleeping bags, food, and a Rosey are all that are needed for a slumber party during the Rosennial convo

Many mass to local hangouts seeking action

Some place to go something to do. As students obtained their drivers' licenses and became less dependent on their parents, they had more freedom to go out on their own. Taking a drive or "bombing around," they looked for some sort of activity.

Many complained that the town did not offer much to the youth of the community. Plans were made for a downtown mall but these fell through because of the shortage of needed funds. Improvements were seen with the addition of several eating places and skating facilities.

The name of the game was spend as CHSers spent their allowances, pay checks, and babysitting money on cokes, records, movies, and other "necessities." While trying to decide whether to cast their last dollar over a pizza or bowling, many, eyeing a sleek fast-back or that cute dress, made the solemn oath, "As soon as I get the money, the first thing I'm going to get is—."

Not everyone desired this brand of socializing. Many had fun going to a friend's house to watch the Frankenstein movie on television over a bowl of popcorn. Good food and a friend often made for an enjoyable evening.

Extra-curricular school activities monopolized the nights of some students. The Thespians burned the midnight oil as they prepared their productions for the Chrysler High stage. Members of the publication staff labored over their typewriters long into the night. Cheerblock practiced their yells, and there was always some Trojan team working out in the fieldhouse.

The restless ones could be seen walking, aimlessly down the streets searching for something they probably never will find; some type of excitement or something to ease a troubled mind, but most CHSers did have some place to go and something to do.

Principal Lehr relates thoughts on educative values

Communication is vital between the school administrators and the student body to have an institution that can best serve the needs of all. Realizing the difficulty of maintaining a constant rapport between the two, the co-editors-in-chief and the student life editor of the ROSENNIAL interviewed Mr. William E. Lehr

ROSENNIAL: Was 1971-72 a good year for Chrysler High School as compared with others?

LEHR: Comparing one year against another is a difficult thing

We have many accomplishments this year such as the state debate team championship, the outstanding basketball record, and things like this. On the other hand, we have had some problems that have not been typical of previous years that we probably have to say have not been good facets of the year. On the balance, I would have to say it's been a pretty good year

ROSENNIAL: What is the most important role that a high school plays for a student?

LEHR: We're prone to say it plays the role of helping prepare him for life. I believe it is to help him think, fit facts together, and come up with logical decisions. If an individual can't do this, he's in trouble the rest of his life.

ROSENNIAL: What is your role as principal in relation to the role of a high school?

LEHR: Your principal's role is basically that of leadership — on the theoretical level. But in practicality, he gets bogged down in so much trivia that demand his personal attention on a day-to-day basis, that it's difficult to provide this educational leadership.

Numerous reports come in, there are certain deadlines, and maybe from my standpoint, or the school's, it doesn't do anything to improve the educational program and yet this is my main objective, it is why I attend conferences, it's why I read a tremendous amount of material: trying to gain new ideas to improve the educational program at Chrysler High School

With emphasis on leadership, Mr. Lehr discusses the role that a principal plays in a large high school

Shouts of "This is Trojan Country!" shake a packed Muncie Gym as the Trojans gain a victory over Muncie Central ROSENNIAL: Do you feel the modular system is 'right' for the students at Chrysler High?

LEHR: I think that is answered by the fact that we have continued on the modular program. I would say there are several things that have occurred that people would be prone to blame on the modular program, and needless to say, I ask myself this question frequently because I want a good school. I'm not in this business to fail, and if you don't do the best possible job that you're capable of doing then you have failed.

It seems to me as I look at the situation that the modular program has been a victim of a complete reorientation of societal standards. For example: Flexible scheduling did not create the desire of people to change their style of clothing. This is something that came from the outside in and is a part of the change in the societal attitude. Because of this change on the outside, certain people went to court and got court decisions saying it was not the proper role of the school to dictate standards of dress. So, outsiders who have little or no contact with students of this day and age make a judgment upon the fact that they may see boys with long hair; and they do see them here, that they see girls in short shorts, and compare this with school as they knew it. As a result, they say that it's flexible scheduling that failed. The answer is flexible scheduling has absolutely nothing to do with it.

ROSENNIAL: What are the prospects of an open campus for CHS?

LEHR: At the present time, certain schools are experimenting with this. One of the things that any school or any educator has to realize is that the school is a part of the community in which it exists. Part of my job as principal is to know what is feasible within this area. I would have to say I don't think this community at this point will accept the open campus philosophy.

ROSENNIAL: Do you think that Chrysler High in general has coped successfully with problems such as drugs, drop-outs, and general dissatisfaction?

LEHR: I can say a flat no to this. We are not satisfied with our results in the areas of either the usage of drugs or in the area of drop-outs. We have done some positive things which I think have held these at a better level than an awful lot of schools that I can name or take you to see. But we're not satisfied, because as long as you have one drop-out, as long as you have one person on drugs, there's need to do something about it.

ROSENNIAL: What does the future hold in store for the school and its role in the community?

LEHR: It seems to me that the school is going to hold an increasingly important role in any community.

I am concerned that the school is being asked to do some things that it's not designed to do. I look at certain Supreme Court decisions in which they're trying to solve very huge societal problems through the school and thus are really hampering our growth. We are not a cure-all. We can work with society, we can fit into the total effort and assume our part of it, but to expect us to do it all is not only wrong, but impossible.

ROSENNIAL: Do you have any advice that you'd want to give to the graduating senior class?

LEHR: Advice is always readily available and so seldom used, because in order to give advice, you must be able to walk in that man's shoes. There are certain areas of concern that we always have for the future. My advice, my encouragement, my charge to the people leaving this building is don't be satisfied, keep working to improve, maintain optimism because things aren't as bad as they actually seem and if we keep working at these problems, we can look back at history and see that no matter how big the problem was, how overwhelming it was at one time somehow or other, it was solved.

With thoughts lost in the depth of night, Don Hardwick gazes into a world that is no more a reality than his reflection.

With an eye to tomorrow, Principal Lehr tells of his faith in the general on now going through high school.

Strikingly barren and yet beautiful, the legendary Monkey Jack winds through the snow covered landscape

ROSENNIAL: Mr. Lehr, is there anything you would like to add?

LEHR: Well, I think it's one of the things I keep harping on. We hear a lot of criticism in many respects about many things, whether it's school, government, society, or what. The thing that I would say to every person is that I have a firm belief that the generation that is going through our school at the present time is the most mature generation that has ever gone through American public schools; it is the best educated group of youngsters that has ever gone through our educational program.

I think they have been sold very, very short to society, or to the adult community, because I find them to be responsible people. We get hung up so often on that individual who stands out like a sore thumb and ignore the mass of our youth who are concerned, aware, and determined to do something to improve things. If we'll keep that in mind, if we'll keep the faith, as I've been quoted as having said, I don't think we'll have any generation gap, I don't think we'll have any really serious problems.

I've sat in this office and talked with many youngsters in this building, and I can say honestly that I have found very, very few of them unreasonable. Most of them after having talked with me have left with this kind of feeling: "I hadn't thought of it that way, I agree with you." Or, they may leave saying, "I see why you did what you did now. I wish it hadn't been necessary, but I understand." Or, I may have changed my mind as a result of it. All three conditions have existed. Only rarely has an individual walked out of this office with me saying that he is totally wrong or with him saying that I am totally wrong. Now with that experience with the youth, I want to say that the future looks darn good to me with this generation taking the helm.

CHSers plan for today to insure a better tomorrow

"Tomorrow is the first day of the rest of your life." With this thought in mind, CHSers made their plans for the future, whether it was for the coming week end, summer employment, or for something more permanent.

Seniors were the most concerned with preparations for the future. After graduation, they were challenged with many directions in which to turn. Faced with the expense of college, the prospects of a job, or the responsibilities of married life, many felt a sense of panic and yet maturity.

Jobs and marriage were not left for the future. Students held jobs for more spending money or in order to pay for the cost of clothes and cars. There also was an increase in the number of married students as more realized the importance of a high school diploma in the future.

Chrysler High students did not wait for the future to come; but met it head on.

Lottery numbers now have new meaning for seniors like Comer Razor who have signed up for the draft.

Many students are making plans for their future households like Cindy Caig who has the china for her hope chest.

Class of 1972 achieves many honors in various fields

Members of the class of 1972 began their year as Seniors with a convocation recognizing thirteen honor jacket winners, who maintained a grade average of 3.8 or above. Fifteen crest winners who maintained a 3.4 average also were honored. The already spirited and enthusiastic Seniors were next united as one by the Senior Vespers ceremonies. Don Lash, the guest speaker, spoke about life and the realities the Senior must face after graduation.

Seniors proved themselves to be very talented. Their abilities were recognized throughout the year. Many honors were given in a wide range of activities on both national and local levels.

As the Senior Class moved towards graduation on June 8, its members continually proved themselves as an energetic group which will always live up to their motto, "If we can't do great things, we'll do small things in a great way."

President Chris Barr leads enthusiastic class of 1973

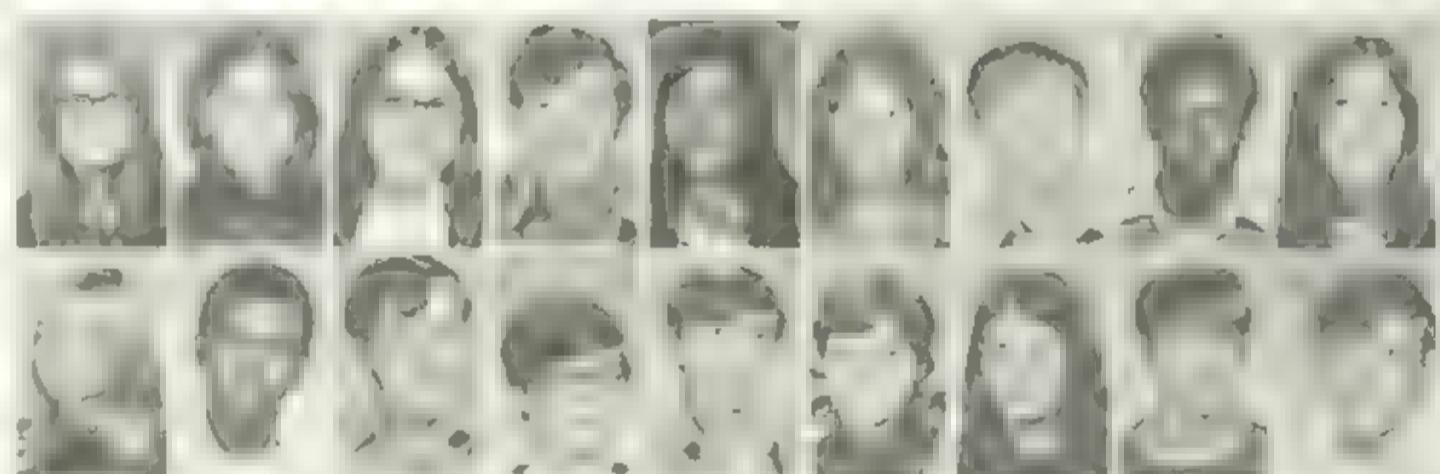

Starting the school year of 1971-72, the juniors found themselves nearing the halfway mark of their days at CHS. Juniors accepted the challenge of new activities. They became members of organizations such as FORSCO and Rosennial, which were not open to them as sophomores.

Creativity was shown by juniors during the election in which Chris Barr was elected president; Lois Hemauer, vice-president; Connie Hill, secretary; and Don Hamilton, treasurer. Three of these officers held a position last year. The taking of PSAT tests in October was one giant stepping stone toward graduation. Those wishing to continue their education took SAT tests in April and filled out applications for college scholarships. Most important, the juniors found themselves becoming united into one, the Class of 1973.

Sophs adjust to new world of systems, styles

From the first day of school, sophomores could be heard shouting throughout CHS, "Where is my English class, Which is the the East Cafeteria, Where is my locker, Which is the Attendance Office?"

Quickly getting into the swing of the action around Chrysler High School, sophomore boys tried out for Colt teams in anticipation of becoming Trojans next year. Girls occupied themselves in clubs and activities such as Cheerblock and Flag Corps. Sophomores also were kept busy ordering class rings and becoming acquainted with the modular system.

After their first competitive campaign, these four sophomores were elected as officers of the Class of 1974: Jeff Wadman, president; Jeff Walcott, vice-president, Vicki Horn, treasurer; and Party Jennings, secretary.

In preparation for the sophomore class election, candidates spend much time and energy in the making of signs.

After a tiring day at school, sophomore Peggy Anderson takes a time out to chat with a few of her friends.

Communication is object of administration, students

Communication was the key object at CHS this year. An example of this was the new guidance classes planned by the counselors for sophomores and seniors. A student-teacher in-service day was held during Teachers Institute and the subject of oppression in school was discussed. There was student involvement in school policy decisions too. The students at CHS helped to decide the parking lot policy and from what company the school would order class rings and graduation announcements.

CHS, the School Board, and administration rolled out the red carpet to its new neighbor Parkview Junior High this spring. The opening of the new junior high has been long awaited.

New personalities join Chrysler High School faculty

Even though CHS was forced to eliminate a few courses this year, some bright new faces were added to the teaching staff. These versatile personalities along with the ones already at CHS strived very hard to present outstanding programs. The new faces include Miss Jane Adams, Mrs. Alpha Cooper, Mrs. Connie Donnell, Mrs. Judy Piskula, Miss Gari Williams, Mrs. Carolyn Todd, Mr. Thomas Gordon, Mr. Terry Fox.

Mrs. Stephanie Vanderleest and Mr. Dick Willis rejoined the teaching staff after leaves of absence. Faculty members and the Chrysler High student body welcomed these new instructors.

"You don't mean to tell me that you ran the mile in 2:07, do you?!" Mr. Wilbur Beach asks in utter amazement.

Vocational, counseling departments add programs

A new program of the counseling department this year was the guidance classes for sophomores and seniors. Sophomores became familiar with curriculum choices and got information concerning jobs. Seniors were informed of college and trade school opportunities through a variety of speakers.

The duties of the counselors were changed this year, so that the same counselor could counsel with the same group of individuals throughout high school.

The vocational department of CHS was busy with plans to add two new programs next fall. The New Castle Area Vocational School became a reality with over 100 students from three surrounding schools taking classes here.

Looking over college literature are counselors Mr. Frank Kovaleski, Mr. Robert Rinehart, Mrs. Mary Sinnock, Mrs. Connie Donnell and Miss Evelyn Rentchler.

The Advisory Board which meets to seek answers to various problems includes (SEATED) Miss F. Eilar, Mrs. R. Creech, Miss E. Rentchler, Miss B. McCord, Miss R. Andrews, and Mrs. B. Hankenhoff (STANDING) Mr. W. Lehr, Mr. W. Veach, Mr. E. Renner, Mr. M. Arford, Mr. L. Hay, Mr. R. Hostetler, Mr. W. Zeigler, Mr. W. Akey, and Mr. R. Forbee. The smiling secretaries at CHS are Mrs. E. Ingram, Mrs. M. Williams, Mrs. H. Porter, Mrs. W. Murray, Mrs. M. Bow, Mrs. J. Sheddick, and Miss G. Alumbaugh.

Mrs. Beverly Hankenhoff

Essential staffs contribute to a successful CHS

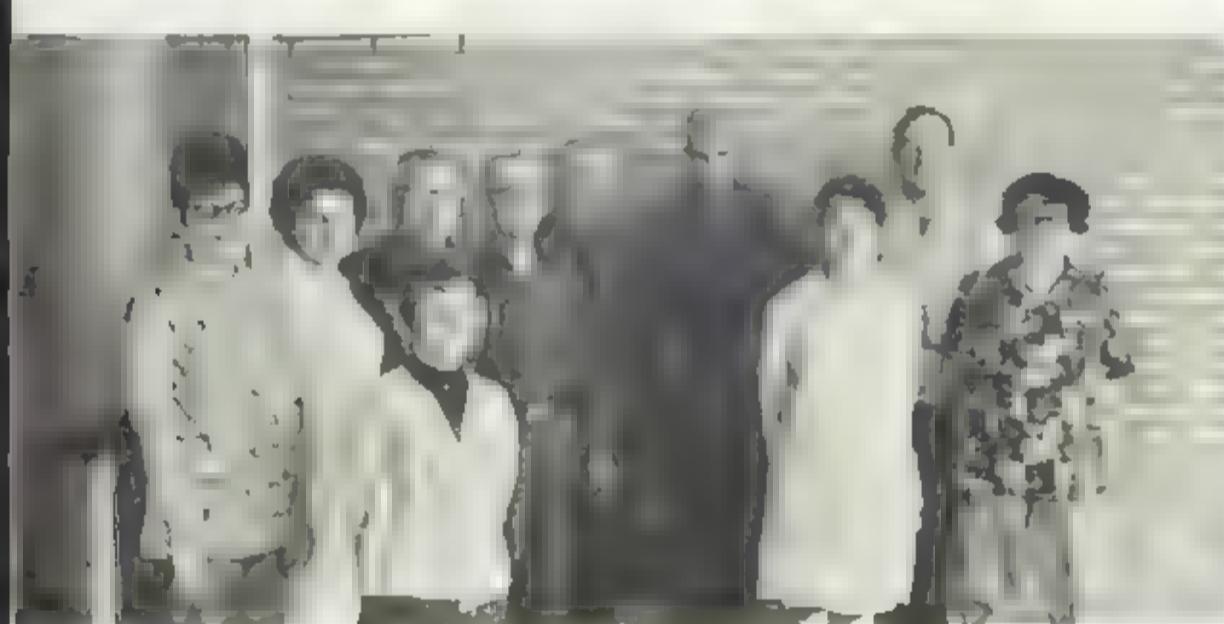

Whether they were busy keeping attendance records straight or trying to silence noisy students in the library, teacher aides worked tirelessly for the welfare of the school population

Working to keep up with the litterbugs at CHS were the industrious custodians. It is these people that everyone has to thank for keeping CHS an attractive looking high school

Preparing and serving lunches at CHS is quite a task for the 22 members of the cafeteria staff. They fought clogged drains and a tempermental milkshake machine as well as answering the hunger pangs of students and faculty

Teacher aides this year are Mrs. A. Rae, Mrs. J. Kirby, Mrs. C. Carter, Mrs. I. Thornhill, Mrs. R. Stamper, Mrs. J. Price, and not pictured is Mrs. E. Kerwin

Keeping CHS neat and orderly this year are custodians Mrs. Nell Moore, Mrs. Avadot George, Mrs. Ruth Davis, Mr. Richard Hedrick, Mr. Jesse Sidwell, Mr. John York, Mr. Omar Boyles, Mrs. Flossie Sowell, Mr. Jim Lane, and Mrs. Mary Matthews

Diligent describes the hard working cafeteria staff. Included in the staff are (FRONT ROW) Mrs. M. Bell, Mrs. G. Kolodziej, Mrs. C. Fowler, Mrs. D. Pierce, Mrs. B. Moffitt, Mrs. L. Rinsch, Mrs. W.

Crabtree. (MIDDLE ROW) Mrs. L. Hoots, Mrs. C. Powers, Mrs. M. Sells, Mrs. V. Crabtree, Mrs. I. Bell, Mrs. R. Steele, Mrs. A. Owens. (BACK ROW) Mrs. M.

Byrd, Mrs. M. Baganz, Mrs. A. Cleel, Mrs. W. Hedrick, Mrs. J. Haas, Mrs. P. Church, Mrs. P. Swigart, and Mrs. I. Bell

Students merge via shared experiences

Outstanding events highlight each school year

Some are not as visible as others and can be seen only when looking back, remembering

Among Chrysler High's many accomplishments was the successful effort to combine all phases of school life into a single unit of learning experiences.

The student body was the star of the show, acting and reacting.

They turned on — to books, to cars, to life — and turned others on

Friendships grew from common interests. Respect and pride existed for the institution as well as for the individual

An easy going tone of acceptance was produced, a mood of FUSION that engulfed the entire school

Smiles tell the story of a sailor who captures his own section of the world.

International Science Awards have given Chris Nicholson two summer naval cruises.

CHS gains unity with spirit of FUSION

Relating experiences, Cathy, Bill and Ray Forycik pause before leaving school.

The school session passed and along with it faces, events and dreams. For the graduating seniors, souvenirs and memories remained. Underclassmen and faculty members reflected on 1971-72 before preparing for future years of high schoolers. Recently a pioneer for new concepts in education, CHS paused awhile, glancing back on the birth of another decade and the changes brought with it. No longer children but young adults, students joined together as active participants of the community, concerned citizens of the nation. All parts of the school were bonded together by a spirit of unity, a spirit of FUSION.
